KENT GUILTY OF MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE

RUTLAND, Vt., April 10.—The jury in the case of Elroy M. Kent, who has been on trial for two weeks for the murder of Miss Della B. Congdon, the deaf mute, to-day returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the firs degree.

The jury took but one formal ballot. It stood eleven for murder in the first degree and one for second degree. The jurors came into court at 9 o'clock.

Kent was then brought in. He was the most indifferent man in court. When the clerk asked the foreman of the jury if a verdict had been reached the foreman passed up a slip of paper.

"We find the defendant, Elroy Kent, guilty of murder in the first degree," the clerk read solemnly.

Attorney General John G. Sargent, the prosecutor, was very much affected and, furtively wiping the moisture from his eyes, hurried from the room. There were few present. The Court thanked the jurors and they quickly left for their homes. Kent rose as the sheriff tapped him on the shoulder and much as though he were going to breakfast went to his cell in the House of Correction. He will be sentenced in a few days.

After he got back to the House of Correction the sheriff asked Kent what he thought about the verdict.

"Oh, I don't care. Let them hang me if they want to," he said nonchalantly.

"I'll bet you'll holler when they get the rope around your neck," said the sheriff.

"Bet, I won't," replied Kent. "I'll take my medicine without ever a yelp."

The murder for which Kent was tried was one of the most atrocious in the State's history. Miss Congdon, who lived alone in her cottage near East Wallingford, was found brutally strangled in her home on July 24 last. She had been attacked before she was killed. Several witnesses told of having seen a man answering Kent's description in the neighborhood.

Posses were organized, and for weeks the country was searched, and many arrests were made, but no trace was found of Kent. Not until October was he found

ST. YVES RACES WITH MALONEY AT PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, April 10.—Henri St. Yves, winner of the great Marathon Derby at New York last Saturday, and Matt Maloney meet in a Marathon match race here this afternoon. Maloney has been here during the week getting accustomed to the track and St. Yves has been here for a couple of days.

Of course the Frenchman was a big favorite. There is sure to be a big crowd at the contest, as there is a big French population in and around the city.

St. Yves has never been defeated. Maloney finished fourth in the Marathon race last Saturday and did not come up to the expectations of his friends and admirers.

The little Frenchman has made a big hit here. He says his first Marathon was at Edinburgh, Scotland, last Fall, and he won from a field of forty-four starters in two hours and 44 minutes. In a race for two hours at Paris he ran thirty-three kilometers and forty-eight meters which is equivalent to about twenty-one miles.

St. Yves admits that in a trial over the Olympic course from Windsor Castle to the London Stadium he did the full distance in two hours thirty-four minutes twenty seconds.

Maloney in a match race against Pat White signally defeated the Irish runner. The race was held on the baseball grounds and the track will be five laps to the mile.

HOSPITAL PATIENT IS KILLED BY GAS

WORCESTER, April 10.—With the room filled with escaping gas and a broken chandelier lying by her side, the body of Mrs. Caroline M. Pritchett, sixty-six years old, of Utica, N. Y., was found on the floor of her room at Maple Hall Sanitarium to-day. She had been dead several hours, Medical Examiner Frederick H. Baker believes the woman committed suicide.

Mrs. Pritchett came to the sanitarium three weeks ago suffering from melancholia.

MAFIA THREATENS PETROSINO FUNERAL

WIFE SLAYER AT BAY, DIES BY SHOOTING

BINGHAM, Me., April 10.—After an all-night hunt by officers and scores of citizens who carried lanterns and followed footprints in the snow, Herbert Nottage, who shot and fatally injured his girl-wife at the Bingham Hotel in this place, was run down at dawn to-day where he had taken refuge in a barn.

Before the sheriff could reach the fugitive he had placed the muzzle of his weapon in his mouth and fired a fatal bullet into his brain.

The climax of the tragedy in the lonely barn just as the first gleam of the sun shot from the east was in keeping with the sensational shooting in the hotel of the twenty-year-old wife, the maddened pursuit of the man all through the night, and the general excitement that the attempted murder created through this section of Maine.

Hit by Five Shots.

Nottage, who lived at Lexington, near here, followed his wife to the hotel, where she had found employment after they had quarrelled. He fired seven shots at her. Five of them hit her, two bullets passing through her body.

Mrs. Nottage died at 10 o'clock to-day.

In the excitement that followed the shooting Nottage made his escape. As soon as possible Deputy Sheriff Robert Fands and Edward Small organized a posse and started after the murderous husband.

Two or three inches of snow had fallen and it was not difficult to track the man. But he was desperate and hour after hour the trailers followed his steps in the snow. They lost nearly two hours.

The door of the barn had been barricaded, but the men forced it open. Lying prone in the middle of the floor, as though he had fallen from exhaustion, was Nottage. He was face downward, and he hugged his revolver to his breast.

As soon as he caught sight of the officers he cried out:

"Is Lucinda still living?"

"Yes," replied Deputy Sheriff Fands; "but she cannot last much longer."

Nottage had apparently decided upon his

PARIS PAPER ADMITTED TO ANANIAS CLUB

PARIS, April 10.—Who is the Ananias? Theodore Roosevelt, in a cablegram from Port Said to a Paris newspaper, denied that he gave any interviews to French correspondents at Naples.

He says he never saw the correspondent of Le Journal, whose "interview" with Mr. Roosevelt was widely published.

Le Journal replies that its correspondent talked for half an hour with Mr. Roosevelt, and declares the text of the "interview" as published to be strictly accurate.

ROOSEVELT ENTERS THE SUEZ CANAL; DINES IN FLANNELS

By A. J. LAMBERT.

Special Correspondent of the Boston American, who is accompanying former President Roosevelt to Mombasa.

Special Cable to Boston American.

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP ADMIRAL, Port Said, Egypt, April 10.—Escorted by a procession of tooting launches, the steamer Admiral, with the Roosevelt party on board, arrived here last evening. At 7:50 this morning the steamer started on its way through the canal.

United States Consul Iddings, Chief of Police Chalca Bey, M. Jusserand, head of the Suez Canal Company, and brother of the French ambassador, and Watson Bey, the Khedive's aide-de-camp, boarded the Admiral on arrival. Watson Bey invited Mr. Roosevelt in the name of the Khedive to visit Cairo, explaining that the Khedive's sixteen-knot private launch could overtake the Admiral at Suez, but Mr. Roosevelt firmly declined the invitation.

At Dinner in Flannels.

M. Jusserand gave a dinner to Mr. Roosevelt, which he attended wearing a sombrero and flannels, which M. Jusserand laughingly described as the costume of a "rough rider."

It took Mr. Roosevelt several hours to

"Black Hand" Letter Received by Mgr. Kearney of the Cathedral Where the Funeral Will Be Held, Causes Police to Be Stationed on All Roofs in the Vicinity; No One Else Permitted Near.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Unusual precautions to guard the body of Lieutenant Petrosino, who was assassinated in Palermo, Sicily, were taken by Police Commissioner Bingham to-day as the result of a mysterious threatening letter received by Monsignor Kearney, pastor of St. Patrick's Cathedral in Mott street, where the funeral services are to be held Monday.

Near No. 233 Lafayette street, where Petrolino's body lies in state to-day, detectives stationed themselves on the roofs of tenement houses and would permit no one to remain on the tops of the buildings. At police headquarters it was said that the Commissioner had asked Monsignor Kearney if he feared for himself in the receiving of the threatening letter. The monsignor is said to have replied:

"I fear nothing. I have lived with these people for years. If they blow up the church I will go with it. It is where I have worked, and if they did that it would be my time as well as that of the church."

Two policemen were on guard, one at the head and one at the foot of the casket, all during the night. They remained on duty six hours each. Outside there were twenty-five policemen under Lieutenant William Barrett of the Mulberry street station.

These men kept the block free and no one was allowed to pass. All were told to go to neighboring streets and few offered any objection. Besides these uniformed men fifty detectives were stationed about.

JAY GOULD, WHO PLAYS CRANE FOR TENNIS TITLE

Jay Gould, the national court tennis champion and man who made Eustace Miles, the English champion, complain of the bobbing straw hat and the coffee when he lost in the world's championship series to the grandson of the railroad magnate, defends his title against Joshua Crane at the Tennis and Racquet Club of this city this afternoon.

Gould has already defeated Crane and while the Dedham man showed splendid form in easily disposing of Foxhall P. Keene and Dr. George S. Derby, and thus winning out in the tournament which finished Tuesday, he is not expected to win over Mr. Gould.

Crane is a very fine court tennis player, however, and has trained and practised for this match for some time. There will be a very notable gallery at the contest which promises to be closer than has been the case in the last two years.

SUSPECT NEPHEW OF ASSASSIN WHO ATTACKED HUMBERT

PALERMO, April 10.—The police ascertained to-day that Passamante, one of the suspects in the death of Lieutenant Joseph Petrosino, is a nephew of the man who attempted to assassinate King Humbert in Naples in 1898.

The police are drawing a net of evidence around Passamante and Constantino. The men arrived from Brooklyn on February 16. The police have traced their movements and found that after the death of the New York detective both had their moustaches shaved off and fled to Turin, Italy, a Mafia stronghold.

When the police searched Passamante's home they found photographs and papers which must have belonged to Petrosino.

SWINBURNE, POET, DIES IN LONDON

LONDON, April 10.—Algernon Charles Swinburne, the poet, died to-day. He had been ill of pneumonia for four days.

He celebrated his seventy-second birthday on Monday by taking a six-mile walk and did not complain of being ill until the following day.

His entire household, including Theodore Watts-Dunton, the poet and novelist, previously had been prostrated with the influenza, and later Mr. Swinburne himself was attacked by the disease, which developed into pneumonia. Mr. Watts-Dunton is now recovering.

Swinburne, the essential poet and friend of all the latter day litterateurs has occupied a unique place in the age of Victorian literature.

Writing for Fifty Years.

For fifty years his pen has been busy, and some of his poems are recognized among the most beautiful in the English language.

Only last September Swinburne published his last work. This was a volume of prose, "The Age of Shakespeare." In it the poet scorns latter day criticism of the great Elizabethan age of the poetic drama and in winged words fired by the spirit of that age itself gives justice to the greatest of all the dramatic poets.

The work of Swinburne perhaps best known in the United States is the volume published here under the title, "Laus Veneriæ"; his dramatic poems, "Dressing Queen of the Lombards"; "Atalanta in Calydon," "Tristan of Lyonesse" and "Marino Faliero." A recently published edition of Swinburne's collected works filled eleven volumes.

His Literary Friends.

Swinburne was the son of Charles Henry Swinburne and Lady Jane Henrietta, the daughter of the third Earl of Ashburnham. He was a grandson of Sir John Edward Swinburne, baronet. He was educated in France, spent a short time at Oxford and then went to Florence and visited Walter Landour. His friendship with Watts-Dunton in his later years is one of the most remarkable in literature.

GOV. LILLEY NEAR DEATH

HARTFORD, Ct., April 10.—The family of Governor Lilley gathered about his bedside to-day, after physicians had announced that he is hovering at death's door with very little chance of recovery. A bulletin issued from the attending physicians this morning stated that Governor Lilley had been unconscious all night.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

Doctors Say There Is a Harmless, Safe and Sure Way to Remove It.

Dr. Starbuck Says—"I Feel Justified in Making the Assertion That It Is the Only Successful Method of Removing Hair."

Every woman who is afflicted with superfluous hair will undoubtedly be glad to know that there is a proper and logical method of getting rid of this most annoying and embarrassing disfigurement.

The best authorities in the medical profession agree that De Miracle will destroy hair successfully, although there are many other unreliable things which claim to do it. The success which has attended this preparation as a means of removing hair is based upon the method by which it works. It is a purely scientific principle and totally different from the pastes and powders and other remedies which simply break off the hair in the same way that the razor does, making the hair when it grows out again heavier than before.

So far as the electric needle or X-rays is concerned, both are not only unsatisfactory, but dangerous as well. The pain and burns of the electric needle last for a lifetime, and the dangers of the X-ray are too serious.

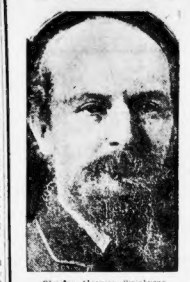
De Miracle may be used without any inconvenience or danger, of any kind. The method by which it works is so simple that it can not be classed or compared with that of the fake free treatments which are advertised so extensively in the newspapers.

Don't forget, that all of these cheap worthless concoctions it will be harder to remove the hair.

Remember, De Miracle is the only method for removing hair that is indorsed by physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and prominent magazines.

We will send you absolutely free, in plain sealed envelope, a 56-page booklet containing full information, as well as testimonials of prominent physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and the principal magazines. You should read this booklet before you try anything. It treats the subject exhaustively. Write to the DE MIRACLE CHEMICAL CO., Dept. F.B., 1,003 Park avenue, New York, simply saying you want this booklet, and it will be mailed sealed at once.

SWINBURNE'S SONG OF DEATH.



Charles Algernon Swinburne.

From too much love of living,
From hope and fear set free,
We thank with brief thanksgiving
Whatever gods may be
That no life lives forever;
That dead men rise up never;
That even the weariest river
Winds somewhere safe to sea.

Then star nor sun shall waken,
Nor any change of light;
Nor sound of waters shaken,
Nor any sound or sight;
Nor wintry leaves nor vernal,
Nor days nor nights diurnal;
Only the sleep eternal
In an eternal night.

—From Swinburne's "The Garden of Proserpine."

action as soon as he learned the fate of his wife. Realizing that she was doomed and that he was a murderer, the man promptly shot himself.

After firing the shot he lay for a moment, moaning and apparently attempting to speak. His eyes sought the face of Deputy Sheriff Funds. The officer knelt over him.

"What is it, Nottage? What do you want to say?"

"I—sorry—shot—wife—sorry—sorry!"

Then he fell back, there was a convulsive movement of the body and he was dead.

The news of the tragedy in the barn reached here early to-day and added to the excitement that has prevailed since the first shooting. The fleeing man had travelled twelve miles in the snow and then had been assembled through weakness to suggest into the barn.

Shot Wife Four Times.

Nottage's wife, Mrs. Lucinda Nottage, had just come out of her room, was shot four times at the Bingham House, where she had been working during the past fortnight, following a separation from her husband. The latter had stayed at their former home in Lexington when his wife left him, but came here apparently to reach an agreement over the disposition of their white child, a baby not a year old.

Reaching the Bingham house, the husband asked to see his wife and was shown into the hotel parlor by the proprietor. The wife soon came down, and she was heard to say:

"Well, you can keep the baby if you want to."

Shortly after this remark the husband was heard in the telephone booth, where the clerk learned that he conversed with Mrs. Nottage's father in Bingham. In this conversation it is understood that Nottage's father-in-law worked like for coaxing him of his child's affection for the wife seeking his wife. He said he knew nothing of it and knew myself, only the last minute.

Within a few minutes after that the hotel proprietor and the guests of the house were alarmed by the sound of four shots in irregular intervals.

ROOSEVELT ON WAY TO SUEZ; IN THE CANAL

recover from the depression caused by his visit to ruined Messina, at the end of which period he authorized me to publish the following statement:

Saddened by Messina.

There is no sadder sight of dreadful desolation than Messina. Words cannot describe. It seems that 40,000 bodies remain still buried in the ruins. The American people do not realize all they owe their representatives in Sicily, Ambassador Griscom, Naval Attache Belknap, Lieutenant Wilcox and Messrs. White and Chalmer and many other members of the volunteer committee. They have done work that should be a source of legitimate pride to every good American. Our gratitude to them should be heartfelt, for they have reflected the honor of our country. I was especially struck by the efficiency, good humor and all round power shown by the enlisted men.

Once Messina was left to view Mr. Roosevelt became indeed a public citizen, mingling freely with the passengers and speaking French, German or English as the occasion required. He showed the fascinating side of his personality so constantly that it is not the ex-President who was all hearts aboard, but the man himself.

Hears Jungle Dangers.

Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Selous and the other hunters aboard devoted hours to the discussion of their plans, prospects and conditions. Not the slightest self-consciousness with the trip was neglected. Mr. Roosevelt would spend two hours in a pedantic talk of the dangers of the Tsetse flies, jiggers, etc., and then after the effective means for the prevention or cure of these would one hunter drew such vivid pictures of the dangers of the jungle and rivers that President Roosevelt's face clouded not for a moment, but sympathetically, differently.

Another experienced hunter said: "I went to Uganda when I was a boy of twenty-odd, frail and delicate, so do not fear for your son."

After White Rhino.

Immediately Mr. Roosevelt's smile reappeared. When Mr. Roosevelt learned that the American correspondent was going to Nairobi (McMillan's hunting station) he asked him to remain with the party, in order to cable to Mombasa to make arrangements for the American correspondent indefinitely. Mr. Roosevelt's smile returned.

Mr. Roosevelt is anxious to meet and hunting as soon as possible. It is probable he will remain at Mombasa for a day to confer with Governor Hayes Sadler, according to the hunters present Mr. Roosevelt's quest for a white rhino will probably be successful, but will be obliged to go to the Congo, where they are still to be found.

Mrs. Belmond charges that the physicians left the hospital without her permission.

GOVERNOR ENDS N. H. DEADLOCK

CONCORD, N. H., April 10.—When the third and final attempt to take from the table the railroad tax commission bill and break the deadlock which has kept the House after seventeen and one-half hours of heated discussion had failed, Governor Henry B. Quinby prorogued the New Hampshire Legislature at 3:10 a. m. to-day.

The bill aimed to assess the railroads of the State on the market value of stocks and bonds, and has been the big issue of the closing days of the session. Seven hundred and eighty-one measures have been considered, and 594 of these have become laws in the fourteen weeks that the two bodies of the Legislature have been assembled.

FERRIES CRASH; 400 IN PANIC

NEW YORK, April 10. Four hundred passengers were panic stricken to-day by a collision between the ferryboats Hamburg and Lackawanna, a short distance from the Hoboken landing. While burying pier the rudder of the Hamburg became unmanageable. Captain Cullen ordered the engines reversed, but it was too late to avoid a collision. The Lackawanna, crowded with passengers, was making her slip when the Hamburg, carried by the swift tide, crashed head on into her bow. The rudder of the Hamburg was torn away and the front deck of the Lackawanna was smashed.

The force of the collision threw most of the passengers from their seats, but no one was hurt. Among the women there was a wild excitement. A rush was made for the life preservers, and on the Lackawanna several women fought with the deckhands who tried to hold them in check. Both boats were docked, but the Lackawanna was put back into service.

MRS. SAMPSON FREED, TELLS OF SHOOTING

MACEDON, N. Y., April 10.—Mrs. Georgia Allyn Sampson, who was acquitted of the charge of killing her husband, Harry Sampson, nephew of the late Admiral Sampson, by a jury in the Wayne County Court house at Lyons, after three hours' deliberation, to-day made a full statement.

By GEORGIA ALLYN SAMPSON.

It was indeed a Good Friday to me. God only knows what I have suffered, but I stood it for my father and mother's sake. I was young and they are old, and I was willing to bear it. If father had given in at all I would have dropped, too.

Dear, dear father, I never knew before what a father's love by means. I knew I would be acquitted when the trial came, and I was contented to wait.

Where was I when my husband was shot? Well, I will tell you all I can. On the Saturday before Harry's death I had been to Rochester all afternoon. When I came home I left my good clothes in the east room upstairs. I came down in the morning and Harry was still wrangling. I was excited and do not remember what was said. Father told me to go upstairs and keep still. I was just and was away. I put on my clothes in the east room upstairs and stood by the window. I saw father drive out of the yard. Then I went to gather up the clothes I had worn to Rochester and put them in the long clothespress off the east room, which was used by the entire family for a dressing room.

Not Near Husband.

After I put my skirts on a book I went about my upstairs work, fixing my working clothes in the storeroom. Then I went down and ironed and filled up something there. It was there that I heard the outcry. It was about 3 o'clock. I ran downstairs as fast I could and saw Harry lying on the floor. He could not speak to me. You know the rest.

I am innocent of any wrong in connection with my husband's death. I never wronged Harry in my life.

I stayed for him, raised children to help him, and stood with him to save expenses and I loved him more than my life. His memory is as dear to me to-day as anything I have left on earth.

Lauds Her Parents.

It almost broke my heart to see my father and mother put to the grief of this trial. My dear mother was too ill to stand it, but she is the dearest mother in the world.

I am going home as fast as I can to care for her in my absence and try to make her forget the misery of the last few months. It will be the first time I have been my home since November 15 last, when I was taken away and locked up.

I have not thought of any plans for the future. I shall remain with my father and mother as long as they want me to. I may also go to visit my sister and aunt in Chicago.

Mr. Gilbert's treatment of me was fair, although I suppose he had to do what his duty as he saw it. I have no malice toward anyone.

I never dreamed that I would be accused of killing my husband. Allyn Sampson testified at the inquest and every one pointed to me. It was a terrible time.

Please let me say that the reports that I was drugged by Dr. Ellsworth are false.

The greatest grief of the trial, after the agony my girl and boy suffered, was my mother on the witness stand for her sake, was the attempt made to blacken my character.

FREED, MRS. SAMPSON COLLAPSES, FALLING IN FATHER'S ARMS

LYONS, N. Y., April 10.—Mrs. Georgia Allyn Sampson was declared not guilty of the murder of her husband by the jury that tried her after a little more than three hours' deliberation.

A sensational scene occurred in the court room immediately after the verdict was announced. Mrs. Sampson, on hearing the wrong whose, grasped her as she fell into the arms of her father and mother. A while a crowd of hundreds cheered.

So important was the verdict was reached was made by the tolling of the court house bell. The crowds that had been waiting for the jury's decision thus knew that a verdict of acquittal had been rendered.

When Mrs. Sampson left the court house she left her self, the clerk of the court stood up as did the jurors. "Gentlemen, you have rendered a verdict" he asked amidst an intense stillness that pervaded the court room.

"We have," answered the foreman: "it is not guilty."

HASKELL ESCAPES BY A TECHNICALITY

TULSA, Ok., April 10.—Judge Marshall to-day quashed indictments against Governor Haskell, ordered by the land fraud jury. The ground for quashing was the fact of the three reasons set forth in the motion by counsel for the defense namely: that the last grand jury was not constituted of twenty men drawn under the general federal statute of grand juries applicable in Federal courts of full jurisdiction."

BANDIT PAIR ELUDE POLICE IN CITY HUNT

Two desperadoes made an unsuccessful attempt to shoot Herbert S. Parents, a clerk at the City Hospital, early this morning.

The men escaped after firing one shot. They fled across the yard and disappeared. An all night search by armed police officers in and through the South End failed to reveal them.

Parents was uninjured. The shot grazed his head, and lodged in the desk, at which he was at work.

Officers to-day scouring the entire city for the fugitives. It is believed that they are in hiding in one of the big lodging houses in the South End.

The men attempted to kill Parents because he had ejected them from the hospital a few weeks ago. At that time they declared that they would kill him at the first chance.

The attempt to kill Parents aroused the entire hospital. Patients hearing the report of the pistol became excited, and had to be quieted by orderlies.

Then with hospital physicians and orderlies, he took up the pursuit of the fugitives. It was at first thought that the men had hidden in one of the yard buildings, but a search showed that the men must have made their escape by climbing the stone wall on the Harrison avenue side.

The younger of the two men is described by Parents is twenty-two years old, five feet seven inches in height, weight 140 pounds, smooth face, dark hair, double breasted suit and brown cap. The other was about twenty-four, height five feet five inches, weight 128, smooth face and wore dark clothes.

The description of the two men was taken at the Dedham street station and telephoned to the other stations, and the search for the men taken up almost immediately.

CONVICT FREE, SENDS THANKS TO MRS. EDDY

Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy of Brookline, leader of the Christian Scientists, has just received a letter from Woodard Leader, a convict in the Colorado State Prison at Canon City, saying that he has been released by Christian Science, and he is about to be released on parole and that he desires now to "live a noble, pure and upright life."

The letter is written on official paper of the prison and reads in part:

Revered Leader and Benefactress:

About to be released on parole from the State prison of Colorado, where I have been justly imprisoned over the past five years for a crime of dishonesty, I submit myself trials telling you how much the study of your invaluable book, "Science and Health," has done for me in that it has been the means of turning me from a life of sin and so-called pleasure to a life of love and righteousness.

The study of your book has created in me a desire to live a noble, pure and upright life. At various times in my life I have had such a desire, but could not would not listen to the "still, small voice of truth," calling for a better and purer existence.

Three years of the study of Christian Science enabled me to understand, in a small way, your inspired definition of God, "Godhead, Principle, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love." I am now fully attuned to God and to you to be able to say in all sincerity of purpose that I have entered upon a spiritual revolution which enables me to demonstrate that "life is eternal."

BAILEY ATTACKS CIVIL SERVICE LAW

WASHINGTON, April 10.—After the committee amendments of the census bill had been adopted to-day in the Senate, Senator Bailey offered an amendment to strike out section 7 of the bill placing all the employes of the census office under civil service, and to substitute section 7 of the old bill, which provided for the appointments of the employes by the competitive examination to be prescribed by the director of the census. Senator Bailey made an earnest argument against the civil service law. He said that it had changed everything into a life tenure office and an office-holding class. In the end would mean a civil pension list.

RABBI SCORES PAPER WHICH ASSAILS JEWS

As a preliminary to his regular Passover sermon in the Temple Israel, in Commonwealth avenue this morning, Rabbi Charles Fleischer strongly condemned a statement in a Boston newspaper (meaning the AMERICAN) to the effect that a Jewish merchant had been seen setting fire to this place of business just before the big fire in Manchester, N. H., that a search had been made for him by the police, and that he had escaped.

"Our Passover, which coincides with Easter," said Rabbi Fleischer, "usually occasions anti-Jewish outbursts in benighted parts of Europe and the darker continents. Then the militant type of Christian likes to prove his love of peace by rekindling the fellow Jews of Jesus and his love of love by hateful attacks on Christ's own people.

Not Acts of Jews.

"This we might expect of certain lands and nations. But surely we ought to be exempt from such experiences here in America. And yet even here the custom obtains to label as Jewish every act committed by a Jew as though his religion were responsible for his misdeeds.

"This vicious custom, common to most of our newspapers, cannot be too strongly condemned. My attention has been called to a statement in Friday's Boston [naming the paper]. In connection with the disastrous fire in Manchester, N. H., telling of the 'discovery of a Jewish merchant setting his own place on fire.' Now, I have not words strong enough to condemn the awful crime of arson. But when this crime is committed it is not a Jew, a Catholic, a Unitarian, a negro or a white man who does it.

One Alone Responsible.

"It is a depraved, degenerate, probably criminally insane man who commits the crime and no one who happens to share his religion or lack of it, his nation, race or color, should be made to share the shame and humiliation attaching to the deed.

"It is criminal carelessness, to put it mildly, which allows such charges or implications to get into our newspapers as have been made in connection with this Manchester fire.

"I don't know the facts in the case, though investigation thus far indicates that this fire was incendiary, and that Jews are not even in the burned district.

"The statement of the newspaper in question is an outrage against the fair names of the Jew, and even against the responsible liberty of the press itself."

The AMERICAN is Boston's greatest home paper.

JACKIES FOIL POLICE SEARCH

With the telltale "bluejacket" suits exchanged for civilian garb, at least four of the five naval prisoners who escaped from the Chelsea Soldiers' Home last night were materially increased their chances for escape. The police of Chelsea and the environs of the navy yard are scouring every possible place that fugitives may be.

Four of the men went to the second-hand tailor shop of Harry T. Rice, No. 122 Washington street, where they bought civilian garb from Mrs. Rice.

The suits they got consisted of four dark gray caps, one blue jumper, one single-breasted blue serge coat needed at the right elbow, two pairs of dark blue trousers with right legs patched, a pair of dark mixed trousers, two double-breasted coats and some other clothing which Mrs. Rice could not recall.

The fugitives are James J. Fitzgerald of Boston, a two-year-man; John F. Grogan, Harry C. Webster, John McGarvey and George Ross.

Guard George Robbins, who first missed the men, was immediately joined under arrest pending an investigation.

The men were first seen in Second street, Chelsea. They spoke to Thomas Shansbury and asked him to direct them to a second-hand clothing store.

A Physician Cures His Wife of Consumption

Gentlemen:
"My wife was down with Consumption since I ordered a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. She was weak from night sweats, cough and in a terrible condition. I ordered a bottle of the same, and after ten days' treatment said from that time on was to get well. She has taken in all six bottles of the Pectoral, and has been for three months about her household duties, and is well and strong. I say to all, that will ask me, that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cured my wife, and I as a cure. It should be used by those who have a run down or those who fear the approach of consumption. It can be truthfully said that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for the cure of Coughs, Colds and Consumption is the most wonderful compound of the present age.

Boston Society Girl Jolts San Francisco Country Club, but Is Not Allowed to Play.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 10.—Miss Eleanor Sears of Boston gave the society page set out at the Burlingame Country Club a big jolt yesterday afternoon when she, in riding costume for a polo game and the club has not quite recovered from its amazement to-day.

Miss Sears was accompanied by Miss Jennie Crocker, who is heiress to millions. They were everything that a man is supposed to wear in a polo game. They made formal application to pay to the match between members of the Burlingame Club and some visiting Englishmen.

The society matrons who had gathered on the porch of the clubhouse to watch the game were shocked. The men grinned and eagerly the next morning, but when it came to permitting the young women to join in the melee their hearts were stirred and indignant.

Miss Sears insisted, but Miss Crocker laughed. She had only joined Miss Sears, she said, for the fun of it. The latter had put on all the riding gear of a man, including the cord breeches and the coat and the short coat, and appeared on the field of battle astride a mount possessing sticks with John Lawson, Francis J. Carleton and the Hobart-Hobart and hard-hitting Major Rathbone.

"It would be terrible for a woman [illegible] very much allow me to play," said Miss Sears when she walked back to the clubhouse. "But as good a polo player as any man on the field. I am a member of the club, and if they had let me get in the game."

Miss Sears is a member of every other member of the two teams which played at Burlingame yesterday, with the possibility of Miss Sears as a teammate, and as a sympathetic Quartet will sing. There will be a good party of the afternoon rooting on the grounds.

"We really couldn't allow Miss Sears to take part in the game," said one of the players. "She rides wonderfully well for a woman, and that isn't saying for polo. There is too much of a strain upon our nerves during the game to permit us to have a woman in it. What could we do or say if she played and was seriously injured?"

Miss Sears is the interesting young Boston woman who has achieved fame by her brilliant tennis games and her skill and daring in the water. She is an accomplished swimmer and holds the water record at Newport. About four years ago she accomplished the Newport-Colony log swimming from Bailey's Beach to Easton's Beach, a distance of more than four miles.

POLICE STOP "JOY RIDES"

Boston chauffeurs must quit taking "joy rides" in their employers' autos.

When a chauffeur takes his employer's car without permission, proceeds to fill up with liquid libations and then runs the car at a reckless pace, usually in company with companions, then it is called "joy riding." Police Commissioner Hasbrouck of New York is conducting vigorous warfare against it.

Police Superintendent Pierce said to-day that there was too much of it in Boston. He investigated the case of James Lynch, a chauffeur for a taxicab company, who was arrested in Arlington and fined $100 for reckless driving. Lynch had the car out without permission of the company. The taxicab people say he no longer works for them. Superintendent Pierce will request the Highway Commission to revoke his license.

The fact is chauffeur's license has not been revoked unless he was convicted three times for overspeeding. But superintendent Pierce will move to have one offense of "joy riding" made ground for revoking license.

THE UNWRITTEN LAW AND THE LADY—Dorothy Dix brilliantly demonstrates that if a husband is determined to avenge the honor of his home he must slay the woman rather than the man. It is published in tomorrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN.

FRANCE WINS 80-YEAR TREATY WAR

WASHINGTON, April 10.—A new arbitration treaty between the United States and France, just ratified by the Senate, is regarded as one of the most interesting treaties that can be found to define its exact scope. The result of eighty years of diplomatic negotiations on the part of the French Republic.

The first length of time France has ever surrendered criminal to the United States, including refusal to extradite political refugees, was twenty years, and this on the ground that these men had committed no crime in their own country. One of the most recent cases was that of Paul Roy, the journalist of Geneva, who is now charged committed a murder in New Hampshire and fled to France. The United States applied for extradition and was refused.

WILD DASH BY RUNAWAY AUTO

There was a small panic among the women shoppers and Tremont and Winter streets shortly before noon to-day when an automobile, running amuck, came whooping down Park street and passed the Parker House before it was brought under control.

Captain William H. Dwyer of the police force was passing when the chauffeur lost first to be struck. It was badly damaged and Captain Dwyer narrowly escaped serious injury.

Then the wild auto made a sweep for another machine which was passing on Tremont street. The other auto was speedily reduced to so much twisted junk. Then the runaway wagon was well tackled, and it, too, was badly smashed.

The whirlwind car was now running. Several times the runaway machine made a dash for crowded sidewalk. Men and women shouted orders at the driver of the runaway, but the latter proved a refuge to others.

After the runaway car against the railway was brought under control, no one until it had caused property damages estimated at several hundred dollars.

The runaway, numbered 6225, is listed in the registry book in the name of the property of the Commonwealth garage.

DOVES PLAY EASTERN LEAGUE CHAMPS

MEET FAST BALTIMORE TEAM TO-DAY

By BILL ROSS.

BALTIMORE, April 10.—To-day the Doves are out of Dixie and to-day they play the champion Orioles of the Eastern League at Oriole Park here this afternoon and are going up against the fastest baseball club they have faced thus far this season. Both nines want to win and are going to play hard for victory.

The Baltimoreans claim that they are in the major league class and fully as good as any of the best division teams in either big organization. The Doves have beaten every collection of ball manipulators they have thus far met and expect to put the kuibosh on the Orioles for sure.

The Baltimore lineup will be: Jackson, lf.; Pelard, cf.; Dunn, 3b.; Cassidy, 1b.; Lewis, ss.; Hall, 2b.; Pfeffer, rf., and Byers, c.

Neither Manager Dunn nor big Mike Bowerman have announced who will be selected as the twirlers, but the latter said he thought he would catch a few innings himself just to keep his hand in.

Pfeffer an Oriole.

Pfeffer, the Oriole right fielder, was one of the Doves last season and a member of the pitching corps until his arm went wrong. He hopes that his pounding thing will be all right this year and that he will be back in the box doing his best work of his life. Pfeffer has developed into a hard-hitting and fast outfielder and his admirers ignore the fact that he has been in Baltimore long enough to be first class as a fly chaser. He was mighty glad to see his old comrades and said he wished the Doves the best luck in the world this season, only he did caution them against trimmed by Baltimore to-day.

The Baltimore closed their Lynchburg tour yesterday and joined the regulars in Baltimore to-day. President Ed Trout of the club said he was much pleased with the work of his division on the road and he told Bowerman that he was ready to have his team play the regulars at any time or any place.

The Baltimore were in good shape and happy that they escaped some of the towns the Doves played in after the slight defeat from Augusta.

The game in Lynchburg was another hatfest for the Doves. They hit both of the pitchers who worked for the homesteaders, as the Lynchburg team is locally called, so hard that the score was closed off Manager Al Orth's countenance and he left the coaching line for the place where the swat of the bat was less audible.

Easy Win for Doves.

Boston won by the score of 12 to 3, and could have shut the Orth outfit out if they had tried very hard. The runs scored by Lynchburg were practically gifts. The Doves made thirteen errors, but one of them was a three-sacker by Fred Beck. His pinched grunted gave him the outfield. He was all over the lot and showed considerable ability in playing the position, but his catches was one of the most remarkable ever seen on the field. He was going after a hard ball at top speed when he stumbled in a gully and turned a complete somersault. But when he came up he had Mathes's the ball clutched in his mitt. He had caught it with one hand and the ground he missed his footing.

In another inning he came in from center field and scooped with one hand a grounder which was sent out for a base hit and got it to Uncle Dudley Ritchey in time to force out a man at second. If the second sacker had not dropped the sphere, he would have made another fine piece of fielding during the battle. He stopped on the first bound after a desperate sprint for a ball which could have passed the runner to the third if it had gone by.

The Lynchburg ball park is on the summit of a rising mountain and is the center of an amphitheatre which is framed by the Blue Ridge Mountains. From a scenic location it can't be beaten, but on a day when temperature is low and a north wind is blowing ball playing there is a refrigerating process.

Players Nearly Froze.

When Tom Tuckey, who pitched for Boston all through the game, called upon the groundskeeper to bring forth a bucket of drinking water, Bill Sweeney shouted after the official: "Bring an ice, too. We'll need it to cut the ice when the water freezes."

Peaches Graham caught the game through with his uniform coat on and went to the bat every time wearing his chest protector. He said he wished he had another one for his back.

Singles by Strang and Beck and a three-base throw gave Boston a run in the first inning. Two singles by Strang and Beck and a safe hobo at the ball by Tuckey, Stem and Dudley sent a few scurrying by Orth's nose and a pass handed to Bates.

They took five more runs in the fourth on Beck's base hit and singles by Strang, Ritchey and Tuckey, with a succession two men being hit by pitched balls and Stem scuffed by when Graham made a drive to the outfield.

Better ball playing enabled the Phillies to get away with the game and championship title, the final count being 10 to 5.

"POP" ANSON'S GAME HERE IS CANCELLED

President Dovey of the Nationals has formally cancelled the proposed game between Anson's regulars and the Boston Nationals at the South End. Monday he claims believes that such a game would take the edge off the grand opening Wednesday with the Phillies.

The Eastern League Providence boys at Rocky Point on Sunday and then play at Worcester on Monday. They will work on Monday and at Lynn on Tuesday, while the Worcesters go up to Lawrence. The New Bedford and Lawrence teams on the same dates.

GIANTS PLAY YALE TO-DAY

NEW YORK, April 10.—The Giants are home again. The much heralded world beaters will be in uniform at the Polo Grounds to-day, when they meet the team from Yale. This is an exhibition game, but has considerable interest, as it will give New York fans their first opportunity of seeing the McGrawites since the famous game with the champion Cubs at the close of last season.

Yale has a clever team from the one that lost the pennant by an eyelash last year. It looks like a winning combination, but will not be surprised to take chances on an eyelash finish.

DARTMOUTH PLAYS ANDOVER TO-DAY

The Dartmouth baseball team will have its first tryout to-day against Andover at Andover, and a wrestling out of men will follow the game. The contest for positions on the Green nine was never hotter than it is this year, and the Hanover aggregation has a large number of clever ball tossers to choose from.

Schildmiller and Brady are waging a hard battle for first base, with the odds in favor of Captain Schildmiller, on account of his being the better batter.

Norton seems to have the call over Orr for second base, and Conroy will own short if he improves his batting eye. It is possible that Eaton will hold down third unless Ryan proves to be a find.

The fleet-footed trio of clever fielders in Hadley, Mitchell and Eckstrom, Conroy showed great form on the preliminary trip last year and Mitchell has a wonderful throwing arm from the south field. Captain secrets is a manager to puzzle the college pace boys.

Chadbourne and Elcock, pitchers, and Emerson and Gammons, catcher, were also taken to Andover to-day.

WATERBURY DEFEATS NEW BEDFORD TEAM

WATERBURY, Conn., April 10.—The Waterbury team of the Connecticut League defeated New Bedford of the New England League 11 to 4. Waterbury outhit the visitors, but made some costly errors. In the eighth inning Krick gave two passes, put three batsmen and made a wild pitches. It was the opening game for both teams. The morning game was prevented by rain.

HARVARD MISSES WHITCHER

Harvard is trying hard to find some one to fill Witcher's place in the half mile, but judging from the results of the half mile trials at Soldiers' Field this will be difficult to do. Witcher's best time was 1:58, but the best that Coach Donovan could get out of the half mile men was 2:07, the record made by Ryley. The trial was used just after the rain and was somewhat heavy but solid enough for a good record.

Ryley made the distance without exhaustion and the most of the way was neck to neck with Boyden, who finished a close second.

MATCH RACE AT MILFORD.

MILFORD, April 10.—Earle Vaills, Milford and Thomas O'Donnell, Hopedale, have signed an agreement to run a seven-mile cross country race from Stanford Hall, Medway, to Division 7, A. O. H. Hall, Milford, the afternoon of April 24.

RED SOX BATTING ORDER IS UPSET

WAGNER JOINS TEAM AFTER TWO WEEKS

By BERT MITCHELL.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 10.—Three important things in the Red Sox camp have developed since the last training news was wired to the Boston American. The first is that Manager Lake has shaken up his batting order and the rotation in which the players to go to bat will be the rotation for the opening championship battle in Philadelphia on Monday. The second is that Wagner has joined the team after an absence of just two weeks and there is great joy in the Red Sox camp.

The third bit of news is that it is extremely doubtful whether Jack Thoney will be able to play against the Athletics on Monday. He was suffering rapidly, but not suddenly from a bad attack of sore throat. He is doing a gargle every half hour on a basis of once per day, and Manager Lake should be head when the writer packed his grip. It is possible for Thoney to be in shape to play on Monday.

New Batting Order.

But before Thoney's latest illness developed the Red Sox leader after a conference with Captain "Doc" Gessler had decided to arrange his battery so that the Boston team would not have four left-handed batters step to the plate one after the other. Beginning the first inning on all right when a right handed pitcher is working the box but if he is all wrong when the team is confronted by a southpaw pitcher Speaker and Gessler have decided on this batting order:

McConnell, 2b.; Lord, 3b.; Stahl, lf.; Gessler, rf.; Speaker, cf.; Wagner, ss.; Thoney or Niles, 1f.; Spencer or Carrigan, c., and whatever pitchers may be selected to work.

Leaving out the question of left-handed batters entirely, it is the opinion of the writer that the new batting order will work better than the old one, anyway. If McConnell can get to first and Lord knocks him down with a bunt or the "Hit and Run" stunt is very likely to bring the little second baseman home with a long fly, if not with a safe hit.

Wagner is placed ahead of Niles, in the order because the left-handed batters. On the whole the new order of things ought to work out well.

Wagner On Deck Again.

Wagner reported to Lake when the first team reached Wilkesbarre yesterday. He had arrived from New York ahead of his fellow players. He told his manager that his wife was operated on for appendicitis and for a while she was in a very serious condition but that when he left she was considered out of danger and had begun to improve rapidly.

The second team which was left behind by missing the play the second game will arrive here at 4:14 this afternoon. Later in the night the whole team will leave for Philadelphia, arriving there early Sunday morning. Marchildon will be with the second team and will go with the next team to Philadelphia.

Jack Ryan and Charlie Chech will do

Baseball News and Notes

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 10.—The Boston baseball team here for the first game of the season with the Virginia state league team. The score: R. H. E. Boston ..... 7 13 0 Norfolk ..... 1 6 3. They play again to-day.

TROY, N. Y., April 10.—Johnny Evers, the latest baseball recruit to the Boston National League team, will report to the Boston team at Wilkesbarre, Pa., on Monday, it is said. Evers joins the Cubs.

COLUMBUS, O., April 10.—A triangular affair between the Columbus baseball team, that under one management will be known as the Columbus baseball team, that under another management will be known as the Columbus baseball team, and the Columbus baseball team, that under another management will be known as the Columbus baseball team, has been formed here. The players left to join the Regulars at Wakulla Beach, Florida.

CLEVELAND, O., April 10.—All of the rosters of the Cleveland baseball teams have been handed in for the retention of Players Ellam, Clark, Rafferty and Rossman, of New Orleans.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 10.—The Pittsburg National League team has arrived in Hot Springs here. Eleven of the squad went direct to the baseball park and had a short practice. A few exhibitions will be played.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 10.—Manager Chance of the Chicago National League team has announced that he has signed Outfielder Jones for the season of 1910. Jones played with Chance and also with Detroit. He was traded to the club for winning the pennant in 1907. Chance says that the players who were eligible for the world's series money last year will receive it, and the amount will be nineteen dollars.

CHICAGO, April 10.—The Washington baseball team here in the east and started their season's work. Manager Griffith has a large team. After the sun had lasted in the game, the score at that time standing 1 to 0 in favor of Sam Rice's club, with Walsh pitching on one side.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., April 10.—Dixie Holmes's Western League committees defeated the White Sox here 3 to 2. Andrews pitched for the locals and Jones and Portello's scene of Holmes's last year, while started a double play in the fifth inning.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 10.—A rain a slight and a questionable error by Hoosier, in the eighth inning, gave Nashville a victory over the Cincinnati baseball team here. The score: R. H. E. Nashville ..... 3 6 1 Cincinnati ..... 2 6 2. Batteries—Hoosier and Bliss; Fromme and Clark.

Pending series are confident that "Deacon" Phillippe will come back this season.

Jack Ryan says that he is not joking—that he is going to make good in the 1st again. Wouldn't it be quick to see the 1st Fellow back way that would make Carney green with envy.

Reports come from Cincinnati that Pitcher Gerry Hermann wants to sell him, asking $25,000. Hermann says that he is not.

Mathewson is certain to pitch the opening game with Giants on the Polo Grounds, April 14.

Charley Ebbetts, president of the Brooklyn club, has completed the assignment of players to the four teams that will represent Brooklyn baseball fans this season. Outfielder Charles Dale has been optioned and shipped to Montreal.

Sherrod Magee, the hard-hitting outfielder of the Cincinnati team, has been released to the Montreal club. Magee has all kinds of batting and baseball ability, but is making robbery stalk in every one of the games.

No more of those ninth inning games in the Polo Grounds for Manager Connie Mack's Athletics. Mack has issued orders that the game must be called at the end of the ninth inning, unless the score is tied, in order to install a system of lights at the Polo Grounds. Mack's players are tired of being done over and it's pretty hard to see any of the gardeners from the bleachers after dark.

It looks as though the Pirates let a live one get away when they allowed Tris Speaker to leave them. Tris is playing like a fiend with the Boston Americans and is batting around the .400 mark. Tris is a Texas baseball product.

Mike Mowrey is out to beat Wagner for short-stop honors by the way he is hitting in the South. Mowrey is batting at a .400 clip and seems to be far less handed on the ball eleven safe drives.

Big Ed Walsh has retained Comiskey that he will not sign a contract for less than $7,500 a year. That $7,500 sounds wonderful.

Manager Callahan is considering the possibility of trading Outfielder Jimmy Sheckard to the Cubs between the Cubs and Pittsburg. Sheckard has been with the Cubs since they were a baby team and has been batting around the .300 mark.

Chicago has a couple of brothers on each of her teams. The Cubs have Artie Hofman and Lee Richie, and the White Sox have Ed and Martin Walsh—at least they will if Big Ed can persuade one of the Bird Dubs.

Two Chadlins—Mordie and Comiskey—have started on a baseball career. They met by chance in Chicago the other day and mutually agreed that baseball was a fine game. Comiskey has been batting around the .300 mark and Chadlin has been batted in and asked who would win the pennant. The commissioner was disinclined to say and the treaty negotiations suddenly terminated.

Artie and "Teetie" Hofman, Del Howard and Solly Hofman make us the Cub quartet. Any other players say they can juggle the names in a way that would make Carney green with envy.

JOHNSON WILL PICK HIS MAN FOR A FIGHT

By TAD.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Mr. J. Arthur Johnson, the actor-pugilist, said this to say about his plans for defending the title:

"I'm going to put a stop to all of this challenging and advertising.

"On Monday or soon, the hour of noon I'll be at the New York Journal office to meet Mr. Jeffries, Delmont, Kaufman, Britt, Ketchell, McMahon, Langford, Ferguson and McIntosh and settle any one of them for the title, if that's the way they are willing. I'm not particular just who it is if only the gentleman is confident. I want a very confident person, one who is willing to wager a few tacks on the go so that it will be worth while.

"I give Jeffries his chance, but I don't put any stalling around for theatrical dates. He doesn't want to box. When Britt, with his title, can come over and have a little talk. Billy Delmont and his new champion can have a say, and if Burns or Langford or any of them are willing to talk terms about it the match can be fixed up.

"I'd rather fight over here with the boys where Americans can see the bout. The Australian fans are all right, and I think that it should be fought here. I won't be able to go over until September, but we might just as well fix it up so I can call for them on the Kaiser Wilhelm on the 25th of May, to open up theatrical engagements in London and expect to be back here in August some time.

"No, I will not box Langford in London. There's no nonrichment in a $1,000 purse."

BIG BRADFORD EIGHT SUPPER ON APRIL 19

The anniversary of the "Big Bradford Eight" will be celebrated with a supper at the Parker House on the evening of April 19. Promoter Henry J. Sirocco and Joseph M. Berglin have been busy making arrangements and announce that the guests of honor will be James B. Connolly, the well-known author, Lawrence H. Sullivan, Past Exalted Ruler of Boston Lodge of Elks and former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

John L. Sullivan's Column

If something doesn't happen pretty quick all the big fighters in the country will be leaving these shores for foreign climes, as the constant squabbling has been the means of hurting the game to a standstill in New York and the people are disgusted with the action of the men now in the limelight failing to come to any agreement to fight and close up a lot of argument.

Langford will be one of the first to sail for England, as he cannot get a match to fulfill his engagement with the London Sporting Club for the May 24 date, and Johnson has repudiated his contract to meet Langford, another opponent will be dug up for the Boston middleweight.

The latest announcement from Johnson is his avowal that he will go to England because he has not received the proper recognition as a champion since his glad return to his American home. He does not intend to sail till the middle of May, which would be too late to meet Langford on the proposed date.

I understand Johnson's theatrical tour has been cut down to about six weeks by Hammerstein and that in the course of his hurry up trip abroad, he figures on some stage work in the land where they refer to his kind. Just what sort of a reception Johnson will get if he fails to go through with his Langford match can be imagined.

Johnson knows this; he is doing according to his own ideas, and I think that he should be forgiven here. I only hope he does get what he wants.

Even Jeffries has had his face turned toward the east and some time in May will go to Carlsbad Springs later in the year, his trip may scare some of the fans, but I have my doubts as to his meaning.

Perhaps Britt is a good story about the time he interviewed Sullivan for a Chicago paper in order to make a big splash and secured with Corbett. Ade found the "mighty and mirthful" in a deserted state. Then the young journalist edged through the doorway and climbed up on the top of the champion's trunk.

"Mr. Sullivan, I want to ask you a few questions."

"Ah-ee-ee!" (Growls from the champion.)

"I want to ask you about your coming ex"—battle with Mr. Corbett."

"I kill him!" said Sullivan.

"He is a very clever man," said Ade; "and that is, I have HEARD so. I do not know. I have never seen him, but they say he is a wonderfully clever boxer."

"I'll kill him!" said Sullivan.

"I should like to ask you, Mr. Sullivan, how you would fight a man who will take kicks?"

"Ah-ee-ee! I'll kill him!"

And that was all that Sullivan had to say.

But Jeff has been doing the Sphinx act for several months, and up to date he has not said anything worthy to be quoted as old John L. did that night in Chicago.

It is to be hoped that the Sage of Hudson bank will untrack himself and break his long silence. If he does, we will have a heavyweight battle with some real keen interest attached to the outcome. There has not been one interesting heavyweight fight since Jeff fought Fitzsimmons the first time. Ever since the big fellow retired to his alfalfa barrens the heavyweight division has been dead. Marvin Hart claimed the title because he beat Jack Root, which to Mr. Hart seemed sufficient reason. Then along came Tommy Burns and dressed Hart to death in twenty rounds.

Of course, Tommy hailed himself as the champion, but it was not until he cracked Bill Squires on the noggin just the other day here in Boston that Tommy's claim was taken seriously. This credit faded away when Jack O'Brien knocked the big fellow out, but since the big fellow demonstrated that almost any one could knock him out.

Not one of the "championship" battles of the last few years has created a ripple on the face of the waters. The big dirt that the fighting game was dead—and worse than that.

Then came Johnson to do or die fight or he wants to do his best, and there seems to be a chance of getting Jeff into the ring with him. It seems to be the one chance of taking the belt away from the negro.

There will be nothing doing until Jeff gets ready to talk, and if he says he will fight, it may be by means that he has gone off his nut enough in his training to satisfy himself that he can return to real fighting form.

With Jeff half as good as he used to be—"goodness, John!"

UNDER THE OLD STRAW HAT

By C. E. VAN LOAN.

THERE is a persistent rumor that Jimmie de Jeff is about to rise upon his haunches and make a noise like a challenge. It is about time. It is not been a bit in a thinking part. Cast as a deaf, dumb and blind Hercules, James has not been a knockout or a rod, and no ticket speculators have been called in.

Johnson has been here, said his say and gone about his business. He found it a hard matter to carry on a one-sided controversy. It is difficult to argue with a man who will not argue.

Does any one remember what a grand press agent James J. Corbett used to be? Well, he used to, yes, for that matter. But when he was the champion of the world. But he ever evolved a scheme to put Jeff or cast the javelin? Not so it can be noticed to any great extent. Remember the days when Bob Fitzsimmons was class big him around the country, trying to get a match? Corbett found plenty to say about that time, and Bout of it was too warm to go through the mails. Corbett was followed by classy Jim talking pat.

And even old John L. Sullivan always had a few words for the press gang to quote. He never turned one from the mill without a few remarks, couched in elegant language, but he got at it the right way and was not afraid to say exactly as his meaning.

Perhaps John is a good story about the time he interviewed Sullivan for a Chicago paper in order to make a big splash and secured with Corbett. Ade found the "mighty and mirthful" in a deserted state. Then the young journalist edged through the doorway and climbed up on the top of the champion's trunk.

"Mr. Sullivan, I want to ask you a few questions."

"Ah-ee-ee!" (Growls from the champion.)

"I want to ask you about your coming ex"—battle with Mr. Corbett."

"I kill him!" said Sullivan.

"He is a very clever man," said Ade; "and that is, I have HEARD so. I do not know. I have never seen him, but they say he is a wonderfully clever boxer."

"I'll kill him!" said Sullivan.

"I should like to ask you, Mr. Sullivan, how you would fight a man who will take kicks?"

"Ah-ee-ee! I'll kill him!"

And that was all that Sullivan had to say.

But Jeff has been doing the Sphinx act for several months, and up to date he has not said anything worthy to be quoted as old John L. did that night in Chicago.

CAR WILL BE EXAMINED AT FINISH OF TEST

By J. C. KERRIGAN.

The Maxwell non-stop engine car has rounded into the home stretch and if everything goes as well as is now anticipated, by next Monday afternoon it will have reached the conclusion of the long drive of 10,000 miles without having once stopped the engine. The official mathematicians got together yesterday and figured out by the schedule that the men who have done so much towards bringing about the desired end can retire from their labors on Monday.

At 9 o'clock this morning, when the car made the turn for Framingham and Marlboro, it had covered a total distance of 9,140 miles. Throughout the rain of yesterday the car ran as well as at any period and everything points to excellent time next week.

It is not generally known but the Maxwell speed is tested through a Spitzdorf coil, the results of its work proving it to be the best coil of its kind yet known. The plans for the final day are being arranged, but that one took him seriously. This credit faded away when Jack O'Brien knocked the big fellow out, but since the big fellow demonstrated that almost any one could knock him out.

DRY GOODS MEN FORM SIX-CLUB BALL LEAGUE

A great wave of enthusiasm among local dry goods fans resulted in the formation of the organization of the Boston Dry Goods Baseball League, to consist of clubs representing the various stores which will be in the title this summer for a handsome cup offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

A meeting was held last night at the BOSTON AMERICAN office, was attended by nearly twenty representatives of the various dry goods stores which will be in the league, and elected the following officers: President, Frank M. Rumrill, of Jordan, Marsh & Co.; secretary, H. B. Wales, of H. H. White; directors, W. M. Wixson of Shepley, Ross & Fall; Gilchrist, of R. H. White; of Houghton & Dutton's, Mr. Howe and Mr. Shepard.

The Shepard Norwell team was not represented at the meeting, but it is expected to enter the race for the cup, and a committee was appointed to see representatives of the store about their plans. On account of the short period of the season and the fact that games will be played only on Saturday afternoons, the managership in the league will be restricted to six clubs.

A schedule is being prepared by a competent person and the opening and last list of games will be made public next week. No regular games will be played until after June 1, when the Saturday half holiday begins, and then it is said that all the games will be played on Saturdays.

At the next meeting a constitution and by-laws will be adopted, and it is the intention of the members of the league to organize a baseball league in the city, the rivalry between the different stores has been somewhat intensified, and the organization like the present one has ever existed.

A strazzle rule will be framed with regard to the number of players to be carried by the various baseball representatives of their particular stores. A clause will be inserted in the rules providing that no one shall be a member of a store nine who has not have been employed at that particular store on a certain date, probably May.

NO HARVARD TEAM ABROAD

Harvard athletic authorities and track coaches to-day unite in denying the statement in the Athletic News of London recently to the effect that Harvard and Yale have challenged Oxford and Cambridge to a track meet this Summer.

"There is absolutely no truth whatever in the statement," said Captain Rand of the Harvard varsity track team when shown the clipping from the English paper. "It is a fake pure and simple. There has never been any talk of the kind at Harvard about such a thing and no feeler of the kind has come to us from the English universities, to my knowledge.

"Harvard has not the need to Oxford and Cambridge for a track meet this year and in my belief, Yale will be, also. Mr. Donovan, coach of the Harvard varsity track team, and Mr. Mahan, coach of Yale, are now on record as saying that they do not think the Englishmen would be particularly anxious to meet a team representing the Harvard-Yale track men. I know that this has been my opinion for some time. I would have heard of it and the Yale athletic authorities would have taken no action without our co-operation.

The paragraph in the Athletic News, which has caused so much comment and speculation in the camps of Harvard and Yale, is as follows:

"It is expected, Oxford and Cambridge accept the challenge of Harvard and Yale this Summer, but ought be witness a fine competition all around. For once in a way the Americans will be champions and weight throwers right up to their standard."

MOONEY AFTER MIKE TWIN FOR FIGHT

The three combined to fix for the welterweight championship nearly had some settlement to-day when Mike Twin Sullivan ran into Harry Lewis, American with Mooney, in the BOSTON AMERICAN office.

"Lewis will fight you any time, at any place and do 142 pounds," said the fast Colored Mooney mode, with a lot of ginger in his expression.

Mike was not disconcerted by the straight from the shoulder talk of Mooney and went over and connected with one of his usual left hooks, which Mooney ducked with a verbal haymaker.

"Mike is a good boy and I may fight him sometime," replied Mike, "but at present I am more interested in getting on the road for a ten-weeks engagement with my brother Jack and then I expect good money."

That's about as far as the fighter of the twins will go at present, as he says Jack is doing fine and as soon as he gets ready to meet any man in the world, particularly Stanley Ketchell at 158 pounds.

The closing exercises of the gymnasiums of the city will be held in the Parish Street gymnasium, East Boston, next week. The exhibition will be under the direction of Instructor Henry Higgins, of the East Boston gymnasium, and Joseph H. Macedo, chairman of the bath commission, has taken very much interest.

FAIR GOLFER OUT FOR EYE

On account of the strain of a recent operation for appendicitis, Miss Fannie Osgood, the golf expert, has been forbidden by her physician to play golf for a year.

Miss Osgood is recovering nicely from the operation, but it is deemed necessary for her to have a thorough rest before risking the extreme physical exercise incident to golf, strenuous game she plays on the links.

Miss Osgood is a member of the Belmont Country Club, is a former champion of the Woman's Eastern Golf Association, and was a presumptive candidate for the honors matches to be held early in June on the links of the Brookline Country Club. Her absence from the latter match will be great.

LYNN'S STAR PITCHER, LABELLE, IS TRADED

There was a big baseball sensation let loose in Lynn to-day when the local baseball magnate made that Hi Hen Labelle, the husky pitcher of the Lynn team, had been sold to the New Haven club for Pitcher Bond, the latter being the season in the New England league last season. Labelle is a native of Lynn, and has a romantic marriage to one of the fair young ladies of the city in the near memory of every citizen. He was an orator but he's a sensation on the Babe Waddell style, but knows the game.

Distress after Eating is quickly relieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla Peptic Tablet. Remember the name, Dyspeplets.

A Mother's Life Preserver

"I call Hood's Sarsaparilla my life preserver, for it does seem to me it saved my life. Many of my friends speak of my cure as almost like a miracle. I suffered with a complication of troubles in my liver and lungs, and had a severe cough, and frequently raised blood. Dreadful pains in my lungs all the time prevented me from comfortable rest at night. I felt so want to get well for my little girl's sake, so that I might see her grow to womanhood. Our family physician said he could not do anything more. I read of the cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and that decided me to be taking honest and straightforward. So I began to take this medicine, and I noticed that my food it did me good in a short time the severe pains all left my lungs and I found rest such as I had not known for years. In a short time I could eat well and sleep well. Then I was able to attend to my household duties without getting so terribly tired. Truly Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great medicine for suffering women, and I earnestly recommend it." Mrs. Charles Hickey, 7 Blackmun St., Newark, N. J. Jan. 12, 1909.

As a Spring Medicine, to purify your blood and build up your health, get Hood's Sarsaparilla to-day!

Every Woman Knows This---Or She Should

Some Men Make Their Wives Beg for Money Just to Show Their Mastery Over Them

By DOROTHY DIX

"WHEN I was first married," said the woman in the sage green Empire gown, "I shed salt and bitter tears over the money question, and acquired sorrow on my mind trying to insert a financial plank into the domestic platform.

"It, of course, in the days of courtship, Jack had handed me all of those lovely little dreams with which men hypnotize a woman when they are trying to lure her into the matrimonial fold.

"Well, suffice it to say that I got the jar of my young life when I found out, soon after I become Mrs. Jack, that my financial status was that of the panhandler who rattles a tin cup on the street corner.

"I always got the impression, but it was generally accompanied by a pleasantry like this: 'Great Scott! Does that washerwoman have to be paid every morning? I swear I paid her yesterday and the day before.' Or, 'More street-car fare? By Jinks, you women do nothing but ride on the street cars. No wonder they can pay dividends on an ocean of watered stock!' or, 'Another dress! Why, I thought that a girl's trousseau was good for three years, anyway. It's no wonder to me that married men all wear fringe on the bottom of their trousers.'

Money Question—Cold Feet

"You can imagine what a jolt this gave to love's young dream. It wasn't what I had married for, nor what I had been led to expect, and there were times when I seriously thought of going back to home and mother, where I had at least been welcome to what there was, and nobody had ever appeared to feel it such a burden to support me as my husband seemed to.

"But I was desperately in love with Jack, and, in spite of the money question, I felt sure he loved me, and I got cold feet whenever I thought about leaving him, so I sat down and had a heart-to-heart talk with him about the financial side of our relationship. I explained to him that it took money to run a home on, and for me to dress on, although I managed as well as I knew how.

"I told him I felt that inasmuch as he was well to do I was entitled to a fair share of his income, and that I hated to ask him for money for every little thing, and that it would add to my happiness and his comfort if he would make me a stated allowance every month, and just pay it over regularly to me.

"Oh, I was beautifully logical, for I had thought it all out through many sleepless nights, and you never saw a man so surprised and hurt in your life as he was. He asked me if he didn't always give me what I asked him for, and if I didn't know that everything that he had was mine, and the next day, just to show how good he was to me, he weighed me himself a new silk dress that was exactly the color that was most unbecoming to me and the style that made me look the fattest, BUT he didn't do the thing I asked. He didn't make me the allowance.

"His Sense of Lordship"

"Then, in my lack of knowledge of the masculine character, I figured it out in my mind that my idol had feet of clay, and that the particular mud he was composed of was stinginess. I thought that he wouldn't give me any money of my own, and humiliated me by making me come to him for every penny, because he was the great and original tightwad, but I saw so much of his generosity and liberality to others that I had to abandon this theory.

"Nor was he unlucky to me. He always wanted me to have every comfort and luxury that we could possibly afford, but to get it I had to become the humble petitioner.

"Finally, however, a great light broke upon me, and I discovered the fact in the whole riddle. Jack wouldn't give me an allowance for my own and the house expenses because he could not be paid me as a matter of business because he enjoyed being dependent upon him. Every time I had to come to him for the price of a loaf of bread he had the exquisite joy of being able and grand he was in protecting a poor, feeble woman from the world, and providing her with food and clothing.

"It tickled his vanity for me to have nothing and him to have everything. It gratified him with a sense of his lordship over me that I had to humble myself to ask him for the price of a postage stamp.

"And I knew then also that when he growled about my extravagance and about the price of my hats and how many gowns I bought, it wasn't because he objected to the loot, or wanted me to buy fewer and cheaper ones. It was just his way of boasting to himself and to me of how much he did for me, and how lucky I was to have such a husband.

To Show They Are Masters

"And that's the reason that men do not dest justly and fairly with their wives on the money question. They make their wives come to them for every penny because they want to show themselves and the women that they are the masters, and that's another thing that every woman knows—after she's been married two years."

"Shrewdly mean, I call it," said the woman with the big pearl earrings.

"Oh, I don't know," replied the woman in the sage green Empire dress, "a husband is entitled to some run for his money, and that's about all that he gets."

Madame Fashion's Latest---The "Ear Blinker"

The ancient Egyptian made one of the oldest styles of coiffures known to womankind.

A style popular with pretty women of the seventeenth century.

The Late Thirteenth Century. The "Ear Blinker," the Newest Coiffure. The Byzantine (860 to 1000 A. D.)

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WE have gone through the various stages of pompadour, psyche knot, Grecian knot, puffs, rolls, switches and dear knows what not, until it seemed that there was absolutely nothing new to be found in the way of hairdressing. At least, that's what we women thought; but we reckoned without our patron saint, Madame Fashion.

"Here, my poor suffering daughters," said she, "is something absolutely unique. It won't suit the majority of you, at all, but take it and make the best of it, for I know that you will wear it whether it enhances your beauty or not." And she sent us the "ear-blinker."

So it is going to be fashionable to cover your ears this season; whether they be like miniature twin pink conch shells, or of flapping and unpleasing proportions.

I call Madame Fashion most unreasonable in sending us the "ear blinkers" so late in the season. As an ear muff in the Winter time, it would have been invaluable.

Why Hide Beautiful Ears?

A well-shaped, properly set ear is a thing of great beauty, and just why woman should elect to wear her hair over her ears, woman alone knows. If she keeps on at the present rate of "bossing" and frizzling and curling and torturing her hair, she won't have any to adorn her ears long. and then she can indulge in as many kinds of wigs as her taste fancies and her pocketbook allows.

In not one of the above pictures is there a sign of an ear, though most of the styles of hairdressing are dignified and becoming.

I would not advise the round-faced girl to affect the "ear-blinker." It is not her style.

Not long ago I saw Countess Labia, the famous songbird, in a box at the opera, and she wore her hair in the several-months-old style shown in the ear. The style was slightly modified, but it was intensely becoming.

Personally, I think the Byzantine style is beautiful and harmonious. If those thick plats were coiled loosely at the nape of the neck, the effect would be charming and modern enough for today.

The principal thing in hairdressing is not to follow fashion, but your own particular style. I know how desperately tired one grows of doing the hair in the same way year in and year out, but unless you can improve on the old way, stick to it.

Politeness at Home Pays Big Dividends

MOST of the unhappiness in the world is caused by the lack of thought in the small things of daily life among members of families.

No man is really happy, however successful he may be in business or in his ambitions for power and place, unless he has peace, comfort and love in his home.

No woman is happy, however popular she may be socially or in her church, unless she receives the graceful attentions and dear to every woman's heart from those nearest to her.

There are many women in our large cities who wear beautiful garments and priceless jewels, yet who are more miserable than the hard-working shop girls because they receive nothing from those whose names they bear but the material things of life.

Their bills are paid and they are provided with servants and equipages, but they do not know the meaning of the word companionship.

Other women's brothers, sons and husbands sometimes accompany them to the altars and operas; their husbands never.

Other men pay them compliments; their own husbands never.

And yet these husbands are thinking of themselves as good providers and kind, liberal and loyal partners. And they would consider the well-dressed wife, with her servants and carriages, most unreasonable if she failed to be satisfied.

And yet if these men studied their own hearts honestly they could find no absolute happiness therein.

Must Develop Together.

Unconsciously they have missed the best part of life—the habit of companionship with those nearest them.

Unless we keep close to those we love, to those who belong to us, Time will thrust between, and when we look for them they will be far away from us in tastes and thoughts and tastes and desires and habits, if not in person.

The busy husband and father, the fussy, silling or lazy wife and mother, alienate those who would naturally turn to them for companionship and affection until the word love, in the home, ceases to possess any vital meaning.

In how few homes do we find a vital flame of love burning; how few husbands and wives, or fathers and mothers, form a circle of sweet affection and amiable companionship; a centre where every stranger entering for the first time, feels the magnetic glow and is warmed by the vibrations of perfect understanding and close sympathy.

In such a vast majority of homes the best manners, the polite courtesies and the compliments are kept for the visitor, the casual caller, and the irritable tone and the gruff word and the indifferent demeanor go to those who are our very nearest by all ties human and divine.

Are You Doing Your Share?

What are you doing to make your home a place of peace and pleasure and contentment for its inmates?

As a wife and mother, are you being as agreeable and amiable and companionable as you can be? Are you making the home the dearest and most cheerful spot on earth for those who are entrusted to your care?

As a husband and father, are you doing your best?

Are you taking time for pleasant little journeys with your family now and then, or an evening of amusement where you make the woman you chose for your life companion feel that she is still the sweet heart of old?

Or are you talking poverty and failure and thinking continually of petty economies and putting off to some indefinite day in the future the pleasures and recreations which you might all be enjoying now?

Now is the universe to heaven.

If you are making it miserable, dull or unhappy for those who belong to you, you are spoiling heaven.

And what will you get here, or here after, in recompense you?

As you are, you will be.

Make yourself worth while now.

Old Ocean Is Always Full of Better Fish

But What's the Use of Hanging Out Line and Hook if You Don't Fancy 'Em?

By KENNETT HARRIS

TIMOTHY was just on the point of leaving the room and the house forever, when he heard the swish of skirts and a footstep that he seemed to have heard descending the stairs. A moment later genuine concern entered.

"Oh, it's you, is it?" said Drusilla, with a lift of her eyebrows.

"I suspected it you would recognize me," returned Timothy, sullking and offering his hand. "Do you think I am much altered?"

"I'm sorry to say that I don't see any particular change," replied Drusilla coldly.

Timothy whistled and looked serious. "Forgive me, Miss Draper," he said, "it was a little overcome, naturally. Finding myself in these familiar surroundings, don't you know, and having memories of bygone days revived, and all that sort of thing—well, how are you, anyway? You're looking fine, but that was always a peculiarity of yours."

"Thank you," said Drusilla. "I think you are looking remarkably well."

Fading Away to a Shadow

"I?" exclaimed Timothy, indignantly. "I, looking well? Say, Drusilla, that's a little too much! Honest it is. I'm a wreck, I am. That's what; an emaciated wreck!

"Want to know how much I've lost in the last seven days? Four pounds and a half. That's the truth, as sure as I stand here. Four pounds and a half is what I've lost since I saw you last, and you have the nerve—well, I don't know any other name for it—the nerve to tell me I'm looking well! I expected to have you fall over backward when you saw me. That's right."

"It was a pity I had to disappoint you, wasn't it?" said Drusilla, calmly. "Isn't the a perfectly lovely afternoon?"

"It is, indeed, a pleasant day," agreed Timothy. "It was a rather disagreeable day yesterday, don't you think? I hope that to-morrow the skies will be fair and nature smiling. It's good to see you again Drusilla."

"I understood that was a pleasure you meant to deny yourself for the future," said the young woman, indifferently.

"You don't mind, do you? If Banty Carson and Throop and Billy Murdoch and the rest of that putty-headed, knock-knee gang can call, I think I might be tolerated Excuse the vigor of my language, but when I think of Banty Carson—"

Enough Said on Both Sides

"Perhaps it would be better not to say anything more about Mr. Carson," suggested Drusilla, a little access of pink in her cheeks. "I think enough was said last week about him. How is Miss Trebey?"

"I think perhaps enough was said about her last week," retorted Timothy. "Still I intend to be entirely frank with you. You remember what I said on Friday night when I made such an idiot of myself?"

"Surely you don't mean to say that," Drusilla, murmured sarcastically.

"About the sea and its many denizens of equal worth—that proverbial rot, don you know?" continued Timothy, smiling ingly. "Well, in pursuance of that, the very next night over from the house to Lizzie Bliss' Trebey. I made sure to put in the rest of the evening."

Drusilla bit her lips. "Indeed!" she said. "I hope you spent a very pleasant evening."

"Of course not," said Timothy. "Well, not taking any luck there, it's up to me to go fishing again. I was at Mill; Pritchard's on Saturday evening."

Didn't Enjoy the Fishing

"That must have been very nice," commented Drusilla.

"Some fellows might have thought so but I didn't," declared Timothy, with a dogged air. "Sunday evening I put in at Manchaweston"; Monday I took my tackle to Estella Drimpers'; Wednesday night I thought I'd been seen at the Palace Hall parlor, breathing soft nothings into Helen's left ear."

"What do you mean by saying you saw it, and any one else?" asked Drusilla.

"Didn't you meet with a kind reception?"

"Oh, Drusilla!" murmured Timothy. "What's a fellow to do with a girl like you? Don't there exist any other fish in the sea. Not for Timothy.

"I'll have nothing to do with my fishing. I'm going to put in all of the rest of the evenings of my life holding my head and cussing my foolishness, unless—"

Drusilla got up and, walking over to the couch, seated herself.

"Unless what, Timothy?" she asked.

Taken at His Word

WHILE holding a term of court at Augusta once, Judge Walton sentenced a man to seven years in prison for a grave crime. The respondent's counsel asked for a mitigation of the sentence on the ground that the prisoner's health was very poor.

"Your Honor," said he, "I am satisfied that my client cannot live out half that term, and I beg of you to change the sentence."

Well, under those circumstances," said the Judge, "I will change the sentence. I will make it for life instead of seven years."

If it is almost needless to add that the respondent chose to abide by the original sentence, which the Judge permitted him to elect.

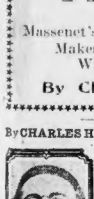
Massenet's Miracle Play, "Our Lady's Juggler," Makes a Hit—A Lovely and Touching Work Without a Woman Character In It.

By CHARLES HENRY MELTZER

By CHARLES HENRY MELTZER



Charles Henry Meltzer.

One of the great triumphs of the Manhattan Opera House during the past New York season was the production of "Our Lady's Juggler," known in the French original of Massenet as "Le Jongleur de Notre-Dame").

Maurice Lena, the author of the libretto which inspired Jules Massenet, refreshened the old legend. It told a story which lent for its religious flavor might have concerned Francois Villon.

It was just suited to the recent mystic mood of the popular composer, a mood which overtook him once before, long years ago, when he wrote his "Marie-Magdalene," and which recurred when he evolved his "Thais."

The resolution of "Our Lady's Juggler" in Paris caused an unusual flutter, not only by its impressive piety, its tender and saintly charm, but also and perhaps chiefly because, as it is written and presented there, it excluded women from the cast.

Men Take the Lead.

With the exception of the women in the crowd scenes in the opening act, every character in the "miracle play" was a man, and, what is more a monk. Even the poor juggler, Jean, whom in the first episode we find singing ribald songs and doing tumbling tricks in the streets near Paris to earn the few miserable copins he needs to keep him from starvation, is converted and enters the Cluny monastery.

It was not piety, however, but hunger and his longing for the full fare on which the good brethren thrived that led Jean to give up his roving and precarious life.

The worthy Prior of the monastery had appealed vainly to him to renounce sin and forswear tumbling. But when the Cook, Friar Boniface, rose up with the revelation which he had collected for his fraternity, Jean succumbed. The flesh-pots of the Lord had more effect upon his simple heart than the exhortations of the Prior.

And in his turn, he thrived as he munched prayers and drank the excellent wines of the monastic storehouse. Yet he was troubled. For, of all the monks, he only "mopus" seems to "mope" as Zoro he could do in the Virgin's honor.

Legend of the Sage Brush.

One of the brethren could paint pictures to delight her. Another could play tunes to make old masses. A third carried marvellous images to adorn her chapel. Even Friar Boniface could pay her succulent homage by his cookery.

But what could Jean do? Why, as he sadly told the monkish Abbot, he could not so much as say a Latin prayer to his Lady.

Friar Boniface knew of only one thing that of all human offerings the one which Mary, Mother of Jesus, loved best was humility. So he encouraged Jean by singing to him the exquisite legend of the Sage Brush—"you may have heard it yourself at one or other of the convents that bramble-sage bush which once put the rose to shame by serving as a cradle for the Child Jesus; when His parents were flying with Him from Herod.

And Jean, a very sick and ailing Jean in the third act of this miracle play, at last plucked up an heart to say that he determined to do something also to delight his Lady.

There was but one poor, trivial thing, indeed, that he could offer her. But he would give her that with his whole heart.

Performing Old Tricks.

And do you know what thing he had to offer? Why—but I must forget my ramblings and remember the tricks, his songs and dances. He would perform them once again before he died, for her alone.

The brethren found him in the monastery chapel, singing his old ribald songs and presenting the old tumbling feats which he had abandoned for their edifying companionship and their generous fare. The wonder is that they were not horrified that they were fain to slay Jean.

Then the Lady, tempted by the sweet simplicity of her pitiful devotee far more than by the piety of the pious, indulged in works a miracle in his favor. The sight about her image in the chapel grieved her seriously and, the halo which surrounds her head in Frederic Soulacroix's picture, she gave to Jean.

And as the soul of the poor ignorant, thieving juggler of Our Lady passes away, the Friars intone the "Kyrie Eleison" and receive that, without knowing it, they have performed no work, have done the least thing to merit salvation, have had the chance of becoming popular figure in the original glass—the salvation of women from the cant—was permitted to.

Mary Garden as Jean.

He succeeded (I know not how) in persuading Massenet that a soprano, like Mary Garden, would make an admirable substitute for the tenor, and so Miss Garden appeared as Jean.

The music of the "Juggler," very fortunately, lay within the range of Miss Garden's voice. No transposition were therefore necessary and the difference between the Jean of Paris and his namesake of the Manhattan was not noticed by those who had not heard the French performances.

To interpret the "miracle play"—written throughout with a delightful affectation of naivete and austerity—a great cast, including all the principal singers of the first rank, was indispensable.

Mr. Hammerstein was able to provide them. For in his company he had such an array of basso and baritone as had never, perhaps, been gathered together before in an American opera house.

For the part of Boniface, the most important of them all, he could choose between Renaud and Gilibert. For that of the Prior, he had Dufranne. Vieille made a superb Sculptor Monk.

As Sagesse, he had an excellent Painter Monk. While Crabbe and Valles were quite equal to the respective burdens of the rôles of the Poet and the Musician of the brotherhood.

Gilibert as Boniface.

Last night—it was Gilibert who impersonated Boniface and sang the beautiful little "Legend of the Sage Brush" to us.

The other artists named were in the cast, and all, without exception, worked wonderfully and successfully to do justice to their parts.

Interest, of course, centred largely—though by no means wholly—on the performance of Mary Garden.

We know what she could do to produce illusions as a courtesan, a work girl and the princess of an old, gray tale.

But could she be equally satisfying as a mediæval monk, like that of Grisélidis or France's Villon?

There were moments, to be frank. In the second act—after the conversion of Jean to a religious life, when the women in Miss Garden overcame the artistic restrictions and showed her movements were, for a monk, rather pendant—nay, even at times suggestive of coquetry.

Yet, on the whole, Miss Garden's assumption of her character was fairly established. Histrionically, if not quite so surely vocally. For it was more than a little imagination to attribute mannish qualities to a person with a soprano like Miss Garden's.

Singing Rare Treat.

For my part, I liked "Our Mary"—as they call her in the New York—best in the first act, when she appeared as the ragged and half-starving, pitiful vagabond.

Where almost all was good, it may seem harsh to call attention to small slips of stage management. None the less I cannot refrain from asking Mr. Hammerstein how it happened that the colors in the stained windows of the chapel glowed when they were supposed to be lighted from within—not from without. And I will venture to suggest that a less garish tone in the painting of both in the interiors shown in the "miracle play" would have improved the effect they made.

The glorious singing of Dufranne and Vieille and Gilibert and indeed of almost the entire cast was a rare treat last night.

So was the work done by the orchestra under the guidance of Maestro Campanini. One of the great joys of the performance once came in the second act, when the Monks were seen rehearsing a new hymn to the Virgin's honor.

The loveliest and most charming moment of all, perhaps, occurred when Friar Boniface sang his "Legend" to us.

If no one else owed Mr. Hammerstein a certificate for what he has accomplished during the past three seasons at the Manhattan, Massenet at least should be thankful to him.

So far as this country is concerned, the production in turn of "Thais," "La Navarraise" and "Our Lady's Juggler" have transformed Massenet from a slighted and occasionally contemned composer into one of the most popular writers of operas living.

That, also, would—to some of our critics—be a few years ago have seemed a miracle.

A TRUTH that has long been buried
At superstition's door,
I see in the Dawn uprising
In all its strength once more.
Hidden away in the darkness,
By ignorance crucified,
Crushed under creeds of dogmas,
Yet lo! it has not died.

It stands in the light transfigured
It speaks from the heights above:
"Each soul is its own Redeemer;
There is no Law but Love."

And the spirits of men are gladdened
As they welcome this truth reborn.
With its feet on the grave of error
And its eyes on the Easter Morn.

He then flies West, is married and to pay the $10,000 [illegible]

CHAPTER VII.—CONTINUED

FIELD, his private secretary, had just finished his noonday mail, and stood waiting by the window while

Gordon quickly ran through the letters that were left, checking, pending, laying aside, with speed and dispatch, and got with due consideration and without haste; then he called Field to his side.

"Well, Bert," he said affably, "they seem to be mostly routine, don't they? Those you can attend to, if you'd be so kind. Please go to Mr. Brown, and these I wish you'd give to Sumner, and ask him to look them up sometime before noon. I'll take them up with him directly after lunch. Now, how about M. Frost? Can he manage to get over here this morning without inconvenience?"

Field nodded and withdrew, appearing again at the end of fifteen minutes to announce that Mr. Frost, widely known as one of the three highest-priced mining experts in the United States, . . .

Gordon rose quickly. "My dear Frost," he cried, "I'm delighted to see you back. You look as fit as possible. Come right in and make yourself comfortable."

Frost shook hands, followed Gordon into the inner office, and took the proffered arm chair which Gordon drew up in front of the pleasant fire in the open fireplace. He was a short, stout man, whose round, ruddy face and twinkling eyes gave not the slightest indication of the really remarkable brain within.

He paused, with the cautious hesitancy of a man given to reflection before putting his ideas into words, while Gordon perforce restrained his impatience as best he might. At length Frost broke the silence.

"Of course, Mr. Gordon," he said, "you understand that nothing personal are about the most uncertain things in an uncertain world, but, so far as I can tell, I've had really rather remarkable success. You'll find all this in the report, of course, but the situation, in just a word, is this. During my trip I've looked into over two hundred claims and prospects. In all but fifteen or twenty I found, right at the start, some radical defect; something wrong in the size of the formation of the mine, or in the quality of the mineral. Of those remaining, I made, of course, a far more detailed examination, and the result is that I have three propositions on which I am quite willing to stake my professional reputation. One is a copper mine in Arizona, one is a silver mine in British Columbia, and the third is a copper mine at the lake."

Gordon's eyes gleamed. "Three!" he exclaimed with enthusiasm. "Well, that's certainly a good enough, and I should think of the three you consider the one best bet?"

"The copper mine at the lake. If we could get it, Mr. Gordon"—he lowered his voice confidingly—"I believe we'd be all and away the best of the lot. It's really exceedingly promising."

I got in with a man named Peters out there, and got to know him pretty well, too. His own claim is a rather fair one; nothing startling, just a good, likely claim, but the one adjoining his is the jewel. The fool is talking about it, and there, and I got information enough, and way down in spite enough, to convince me that that's the one we want. Bills—and I'm sorry to say it's a big But—the claim is owned by an old fellow named Wilson, a man of character and intelligence, but quite crazy over his claim. He's never worked it since. So there's where we stand. My advice to you, Mr. Gordon, is to get Wilson's claim by hook or crook, you want it; it's the whole thing. Then I'll make myself clear."

Gordon thought a moment. "Perfectly," he said at length, "except in one particular. I don't quite speak of getting Wilson's claim by hook or crook. Just what do you mean by that?"

Frost looked a trifle uncomfortable. "Well," he said at last, "we none of us like to own up to making failures, but I feel that somehow I ought to have done better with Wilson. I'm afraid I'm getting old; I think the right man could have put him through on any day. He's got a pretty daughter, and there's a young fellow named Harrison who works with Mason who's sweet on her. Now, I guess, when you come right down to it, Mason's son's word would go a long way toward deciding the thing with the old man; and I don't think I managed to hit off just right with Harrison. They're a queer crowd out there, and I believe the man you want to send out there, Gordon, is somebody to hold a fellow-well-met kind who can keep his end up whether it's drinking whiskey or playing seven-up for claims."

Gordon rose quickly. "Well," he said smiling, "I'm tremendously obliged to you for all your trouble, and I'll send that check along this afternoon. Right out this door here. Take you directly to the street. Good day, Mr. Frost. Behave yourself, now, and don't lose it."

CHAPTER VIII.

HARRISON, somewhat clumsily, held the hotel door open for the stranger, and, as he followed him out into the street, quietly took his measure with a shrewd and appreciative eye.

The stranger was the first to break the silence. "Mighty good of you to take all this trouble, Jack," he said, "I'm getting to feel at home already."

Harrison grinned, with a rough attempt at cordiality and courtesy on his part. "That's all right," he said. "Want to treat a man fair if I can. Anyways a mining man. Too bad it's Saturday afternoon, though. That's regular half holiday here now. Boys mostly lay around and enjoy themselves. We'll find most of 'em out at the park, I guess, don't mind."

Half a mile or so from town they came to the wrestling works, as Harrison had predicted, situ down for the afternoon. Beyond the line of low buildings a flat hammer circled around his head, and then, with a whizzing noise, fell shattered to his tracks, once, twice, so quickly that the eye could scarcely follow the whirling motion. Then, in a flash, it leaped from his hands, and was caught and held standing on edge in the ring while the hammer shot up and down in a high, graceful curve, falling now as if on wings until it landed with a thud so far removed from the mark as to make comparisons ridiculous.

Harrison and the stranger with increased respect paused a little to know that trick, and volunteered: "What's it to do?"

Gordon nodded. "Certainly," he said "glad to." He picked up the hammer, limbered up, as he talked, 25 pounds of lead from it like this. Keep pulling against it all the time, and when you swing it around your head the third time turn right on your toes in this way; once. Twice, and then let her go for all there is in you. Like this."

Martin nodded and took the hammer again in his hands, while Gordon and the others stepped quickly back. Once, twice, three times, the man swung the missile with ever-increasing speed, and then, as he tried to turn rapidly, there ensued a sudden amazing tangle of arms and legs, hammer and man mixed in hopeless, whirling confusion, and two hundred and thirty pounds of bone and muscle and sinew crashed heavily-struck the ground with a mighty, jarring crash.

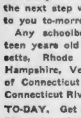
BOYS, GIRLS, ENTER IN WORLD RACE! FULL DETAILS TO-MORROW

BIG PRIZES IN THE FREE TOUR OFFER

The BOSTON AMERICAN will announce to-morrow—Sunday—how the winners will be selected in the Great Race Around the World, tours to European capitals, and New York, Washington and Niagara Falls offer. It is important that all applicants should be properly nominated and qualified before the real race begins. ATTEND TO THIS TO-DAY—at once. You should start right as a fully qualified contestant.

You need fifteen nominations, signed by different adults. You will find the nomination blank on Page 2 of this edition. QUALIFY TO-DAY, so that you will be prepared to take the next step which will be disclosed to you to-morrow.

Any schoolboy or schoolgirl fourteen years old or over, in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and that part of Connecticut which is east of the Connecticut River, is eligible. START TO-DAY. Get in line for one of the fifty-eight prizes offered. Other prizes are in sight. Remember, the BOSTON AMERICAN pays all the expenses.



TOMORROW you will know the full details and plan of selecting the fortunate school boys and school girls of New England who will participate in the Great Race Around the World and European Tours at the expense of the BOSTON AMERICAN. Hundreds of the applicants have been clamoring for this announcement, and expressing the greatest impatience to go ahead with the succeeding steps after qualifying as nominees.

Hundreds of school boys and school girls of New England who have sent in applications have not yet complied with the requirements of seading in fifteen nominations. This is absolutely essential. The winners of the various prizes will be selected from the list of qualified nominees—and from this list only. YOU NEED FIFTEEN NOMINATIONS before you can qualify. Therefore, if you have not the full number, complete the nominations to-day.

Equal Chance for All.

Remember, START NOW AND DON'T TOO LATE. You are never too late, but, by delaying, you work a handicap for yourself. Every one has an equal chance. The school daughter of a millionaire is no better chance to win one of these prizes than has the son or daughter of the poorest man in New England. It is not necessary that you win one of these prizes, but industry and popularity, mixed with a good amount of tact and determination. If you possess these attributes, your chances are indeed bright.

There are fifty-eight prizes in all, offered up to date. These include four trips Around the World for boys, in an effort to beat the record of sixty and one-half days, now held by Charles C. Fitzmorris of Chicago; four trips to the capitals of Europe for girls, and fifty trips—twenty-five boys and twenty-five girls—to New York, Washington and Niagara Falls.

There will be other prizes announced from time to time, but remember, you cannot compete for these until you have fully qualified by sending in the fifteen nominations.

How to Qualify.

The nomination blank which appears in the daily AMERICAN on Page 2, provides for the signature of one adult man or woman. The nominations may be made up either of three Sunday nomination blanks, or part from the daily and part from the SUNDAY AMERICAN, at your own discretion. The essential thing is to get the nominations to the Around the World Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN, Boston, Mass. When you have done this, your name will be entered upon the list of fully qualified nominees.

The BOSTON AMERICAN wants to print the pictures of the boys and girls who have entered for these great prizes. After you have qualified, send in your photograph, if you have one, or come to the BOSTON AMERICAN office and a photograph will be made of you. These will be printed from time to time as space permits, and in turn.

If you have mailed your nomination blanks or your photographs, you need not worry. With hundreds of letters arriving in every mail, the Around the World Editor and his large force are not loaded the rush for several hours. If you have not received a personal letter or postal card assuring you that you have qualified, there is no cause for alarm. You know whether you have qualified or not. If you have not fully qualified you will receive personal notice.

Write If in Doubt.

If you are still in doubt about any point, do not hesitate to write. You must understand every step as clearly as the Around the World Editor himself. Unless you do, you are starting under a handicap, and we want everybody to start on an equal footing. Write your questions briefly and plainly. Great difficulty has been encountered in deciphering some of the names and addresses of applicants, also the names and addresses of some of the sponsors. It is important that all of this information be correct.

In addressing the Around the World Editor, write on the side of the paper only and put your address at the end of the letter. In sending photographs, be sure to write your name plainly on the back.

After you have decided on the plan and details of selecting the winners to-morrow, write to the Around the World Editor and tell him about the plans you make to win—how you propose to prove yourself the most worthy school boy or school girl in New England for one of the fifty-eight prizes. The Around the World Editor will be glad to advise you and help you carry out your plan.

Offer Is Praised.

Public men, educators, and many others have endorsed the great prize offer of the BOSTON AMERICAN. Praise for the great opportunity given to the school children is heard on every side. Boys and girls, you will never before have such an experiences which many men and women have never enjoyed, and which will give real men and women upon these great travel journeys.

Now, boys and girls, some of you who live far from Mermaid Corner may be uncertain that you are eligible. You have an equal standing with the pupils within the bounds of Greater Boston. There are no favorites. The rules and conditions were framed so that you will all have an equal chance.

If you are fourteen years old or over and a regular pupil, boy or girl—a day or night school, public, private, parochial school, university or business college, you are eligible. The further qualifications are simple up to you. The prize offer is for you, and you must qualify by means of your own efforts—making application and sending in the required nominations.

American Pays Expenses.

Boys and girls who will be sent on those trips will go as guests of the BOSTON AMERICAN. THE AMERICAN WILL PAY ALL EXPENSES OF THE TRIPS, which will be made in the best style that money can buy.

The boys in the Race Around the World will travel in two teams of two each, one going East, and the other going West from Boston. The girls will go from Boston direct to Europe. All of these trips will be made on the finest and the most luxurious trains, steamships, and other methods of transportation that the various countries through which they will pass afford. The various trips will take you to countries, cities and to places of interest, so that most of you have only heard or read about, and all of this without a cent of expense.

Just think of it! Have you ever before had an opportunity like this presented to you? Grasp it! This is your chance. Above all, get ready for the succeeding steps which will be disclosed to you in the SUNDAY AMERICAN to-morrow.

Questions and Answers, Making All Points Clear

Around-the-World Editor:

I have never gone to any place. I am a poor girl and have no mother and have never left home. I am dreaming of the trip night and day. What a glorious thing it is. And you are going to win. Yes, I know I am going to win. I can picture myself in the car, in the steamer, in the Rhonsein coming about. And I fancy that I see myself in the streets of Europe looking at the magnificent buildings and walking on the magnificent buildings looking at the poor peasants at work. My most earnest wish is to visit Ireland. I would also like to see Berlin, which is supposed to be the great military centre of the world, and Paris, which contains the tomb of Napoleon. I want to see Russia and the Czar. I am a poor boy and would like to see the world. I hope to be one of the lucky ones to go on the trip.

JOHN F. KELLY.

No. 283 Market street, Brighton.

This is a grand opportunity to see some of the sights you mention. No one is too poor to win.

Around-the-World Editor:

Inclosed you will find fifteen coupons which I got from my friends. I am seventeen years of age and lead my class. I shall be glad to race around the world and think I will come home with honors for the Boston AMERICAN by beating the record of Phileas Fitzmorris made four years ago.

WILLIAM J. MAHONEY.

Quincy.

Perhaps you are the very boy we have been looking for. Let us see what you will do with it.

WHEN THE KIDNEYS GIVE OUT

Backache, Rheumatism and Bladder Troubles Make Life Miserable.

Do you ever feel that you simply can't go any further—that you must have rest for that lame and aching back—relief from that constant dead-tired feeling—freedom from those stabbing, darting pains?

This is the condition that so often comes at middle age, bringing with it an extreme nervousness and irritability that makes others think you "cranky" and "hard to get along with."

Likely your kidneys are worn and tired and need help. In any machine there is one part that works the hardest and gives out first. The kidneys work night and day, removing from the blood the uric acid and other waste created by overuse of strength and energy. Naturally a life of unusual activity doubles the duties of the kidneys, and in time the strain tells.

With healthy kidneys, one has a good chance to live long, but weak kidneys afflict old age with great discomforts. The back becomes bent and lame, rheumatism is chronic, eyesight fails, and too frequent or involuntary passages of the urine cause embarrassment by day and loss of sleep at night.

Doan's Kidney Pills bring new strength to old backs, and quick relief to weakened kidneys. They banish backache and rheumatic pain, and regulate the bladder and urine. When once a proper filtering action is restored through curing the kidneys, the dangerous uric acid is once more expelled from the blood, and danger of gravel, stone, dropsy, heart trouble, diabetes and Bright's disease removed.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sick kidneys in old or young. There is not a particle of narcotic or poisonous drugs in this remedy. It is recommended publicly by thousands.

BOSTON PROOF

C. H. Foster, photographer, 2231 Washington St., Boston, Mass., says: "The symptoms of kidney trouble in my case were not serious at first and I paid little attention to them, but finally I found that I was in the grasp of this complaint. I became so weak that I could hardly attend to my work and I also suffered from sharp pains in various parts of my body. I lost twenty pounds in weight and could not sleep well. I was very nervous and restless, had no energy and was in such a serious state that the doctor told me that I should take to my bed. I did not, however, being unwilling to give up. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I began using them, and had only taken part of the contents of the first box when I began to feel better. From that time on I improved steadily until I was well." (Statement given May, 1906.)

On June 24th, 1908, Mr. Foster added: "My former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. I have been free from kidney complaint during the years that have since passed."

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, APRIL 10, 1909

Matthews MUST GIVE FACTS—or STOP Talking

That was a very REMARKABLE speech the other night of former Mayor Matthews, in which he declared

FIRST—There is no city in the world whose city government is so CORRUPT AND DEBASED as the city of Boston.

SECOND—There is no city on the face of the earth where CORRUPTION has developed in such an insidious manner.

THIRD—There are $5,000,000 spent yearly in Boston for political purposes. This has been done for fifty years—MISUSING OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY for the sole purpose of the election of individual men. Such a condition cannot be found in any city of the world.

Matthews was chairman of the late Finance Commission, that drafted the form for the proposed new charter. He has held the office of Mayor of Boston. He stands high with his associates. He is known as a "good business man." He is welcomed at the clubs. He has a position in society. His standing in Boston gives to any public utterance that he may make an emphasis that merits carefullest consideration.

Matthews's statement is the most SENSATIONAL public utterance made in Boston for years. IT IS EITHER TRUE, OR IT IS NOT TRUE. Matthews either HAS THE FACTS, OR HE HAS NOT THE FACTS. That he was quoted correctly, there is no doubt, for the same statements appear uniformly in the Advertiser, Globe, Herald, Journal and other public prints.

The American has delayed, for a day or two, comment on this utterance of Matthews, because in the interest of FAIRNESS this newspaper was anxious that Matthews should have an OPPORTUNITY to go further than he went in his public utterance, or to retrace his steps. A very reliable and gentlemanly reporter from this newspaper was sent to see him. Matthews refused to affirm or deny that he had any FACTS, or to explain in any way his sensational charge. He "would not be interviewed."

That being the case, the American draws the attention of District Attorney Hill to Matthews's allegations. If Boston is corrupt and debased, as Matthews says it is, then Matthews MUST HAVE THE FACTS TO PROVE HIS STATEMENT. Otherwise he would not make a muckraking speech in public unless it was to hear himself talk. He SPECIFICALLY STATES THAT THERE IS A MISUSE OF THE PEOPLE'S MONEY. He says $5,000,000 are spent yearly for CORRUPTION purposes. He says the CITY GOVERNMENT of Boston is CORRUPT.

If what Matthews says is true, it is his duty to go to the District Attorney, lay his FACTS before the Grand Jury, and halt all other business in Boston until the corruptionists, whoever they may be, are indicted, tried and safely put away in prison.

If Matthews has NO FACTS to base his statements on, then he owes an apology to every man, woman and child in Boston.

The American is NOT DEFENDING the politicians or the city government. This newspaper cares nothing about the politicians. But the American does propose to see that NO MAN, whether he be an ex-Mayor or not, shall send broadcast to the world, A STATEMENT THAT IS NOT TRUE; and Matthews's refusal to explain to an American reporter leads to the conclusion that he was TALKING FOR EFFECT ONLY.

But District Attorney Hill should not permit the matter to rest there. MATTHEWS SHOULD BE SUMMONED BEFORE THE GRAND JURY. He should be MADE TO TELL WHAT HE KNOWS. And if he knows nothing, then the libel should be lifted promptly from the city. What is wanted now are FACTS. If Matthews has FACTS, the public is entitled to know about them. If he has not FACTS, but is simply muckraking, it would be well to know that also.

BY THE WAY, Matthews was Mayor of Boston for four years. In his speech the other night he said that for FIFTY YEARS $5,000,000 had been spent annually for political purposes.

Is it on RECORD ANYWHERE that Matthews while in office lifted even his little finger to prevent this yearly steal? Did he EVEN HINT of such a condition of things? Did he even make a SUGGESTION that there was graft and corruption in city affairs?

So far as Matthews's sneer at the leading business men of this city, who are trying to make Boston the leading city of the world by 1915, that is unimportant. The GENTLEMEN engaged in that SPLENDID TASK CAN TAKE CARE OF THEMSELVES. The American does not feel called upon to defend them.

But it might be said in passing, for the benefit of Matthews, that the purpose of the 1915 committee has entirely escaped him. He has not grasped the ideas and the ideals of that committee. The purpose of that movement is not alone to make Boston an ideal city politically, but to make it in every respect the finest city in the world to live in and to work in. To make it the leading city commercially and industrially. To bring back the business and commerce that Boston has lost, and to win additional business and commerce.

Matthews is not helping himself by sneers at the "Boston Plan," and he should not be permitted to libel the entire community. WE WANT MATTHEWS TO SPEAK UP.

His former position as Mayor, and his former position as chairman of the Finance Commission are not big enough to hide behind. It is his FIRST DUTY AS A CITIZEN to go to the District Attorney and the Grand Jury, and lay his facts about city corruption before the legal authorities. If he has facts, there is an opportunity to turn Boston politically upside down. If he has not the facts, Matthews had better retire to some quiet place. A cold compress is said to be efficacious for brain fag.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

"A WAGE SLAVE"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Herewith wish to express my appreciation of your fine editorial in April 2 issue of your paper. Although by no means a Socialist, every word in regard to "wage slaves" is embodied exactly with my views.

In my opinion Roosevelt's attitude on race suicide have done more to increase wage slaves than anything else, for it is certainly a fact that the people who actually carry out his ideas in regard to large families are those out of work looking for the army of wage slaves, and usually very poorly paid ones at that.

I do not favor race suicide, but when I read his articles I cannot help but wish among them were those not so afflicted are that he and his daughter might be compelled to actually earn their living (instead of depending upon their father's wage slaves for it), and if he wouldn't sing another tune, then I am mistaken. When anything is said to the fathers of large, poverty stricken families, the usual reply is, "I am only carrying out Roosevelt's ideas."

Suppose you will think this letter a huge joke, but as it is only the opinion of a little Maine girl, why, be kind and don't make too much fun of it, please.

A WAGE SLAVE.

WATER THE STREETS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

April is a windy month. Boston is full of newcomers, many of them occupied by poor people. There is much tuberculosis among them, and those not so afflicted are easily susceptible to the disease. Couple of cool, blow through all the streets. Why doesn't Mayor Hibbard water the streets? The need is now on.

DOCTOR.

ENGLAND IS WAKING UP

Ready to Meet Dachshunds and Dodge Runners

LONDON.—German designs against England become more evident every day. Why are there so many dachshunds in Germany?

Obviously these dogs can go through a very narrow passage. Germany's intention is to have a small tunnel under the Channel and unloose a horde of these ferocious dogs upon unsuspecting Britons!

Fortunately the Government is alive to this move, and will presently devise new taxation to maintain a two-power standard of bulldogs, which are thought capable of meeting and beating the foreign dogs.

More meetings continue to be held in protest against the danger to the empire in allowing German waiters to practice Marathon races on English soil. It is pointed out by experts that in time of war these Germans would rejoin their colors, and, being trained runners, would be able to capture the British army, no matter how quickly it retreated. The Opposition will demand a two-power standard of Marathon runners.

The only gleam of happiness in England is caused by the army scandal. This, it has been pointed out by experts, can fall twice as hard and often as any German shrieks. Three hundred of these will be remembered, and woe to the invaders who happen to get underneath them.

Women have had coal scuttle hats, bucket hats and peach basket hats. Nearly time for men to go in for ash tray or schooner hats.

Regular habits are frowned upon by the Chicago Right Living League. "Cultivate irregular habits and be ready for emergencies," is the league's advice. It sounds reasonable, too. For instance, if you have trained yourself to eat at irregular intervals of two years and more, you won't mind missing your breakfast. And by going to bed at noon every day for a year you would be fully equipped to take a job in Cuba.

Washington is too grasping when it wants to be the social centre of the country. Isn't it already the golf, tariff, possum, smile and jolt centre of the nation?

Some "Foolish Wants" of Mothers

By Winifred Black

"TALK about mothers-in-law," said a man I happen to know to me the other day, "my own mother is all I can stand. I don't know what I would do if I had to bother with a mother-in-law."

"Why," I began, with some confusion, "I thought——"

"Oh, yes," said the man I happen to know, "we're all right. She doesn't live with us or interfere with my children, and she doesn't live with us, you know, but she is always wanting money.

"Now, the other day she wanted $50 to go out West to visit my sister, who married out there, and has a new baby. And she couldn't stay a night till she saw that baby. Wanted to go tourist rates, carry a lunch basket and make her own tea. Just as she could there.

"Of course I couldn't hear of any such nonsense as that. I just told her that $50 didn't grow on every bush, and that we needed it in our own family. If it had been a matter of necessity, of course, I would have given it to her.

"But as it is——"

Now, I happen to know that this man has over $2,000 in the bank at this very instant. He gets a good salary, has an economical wife and saves money every month.

But he couldn't let his mother have $50 to go and see her own brand-new little granddaughter, and a woman who has known that man's mother for forty years tells me that she taught school three years after my informant was born to earn money to send this open-hearted, free-handed boy of hers to college to get the education which makes him able to earn the salary he does earn.

"If it had been a matter of necessity——how generous he would be!" I thought, but I didn't say it. I wonder how much of a necessity the camping trip that man took when he was a young fellow and seemed to be outgrowing his strength was?

His mother went without a new dress and stinted herself on shoes to give him that trip, and I don't believe she told him that the money for it didn't grow on bushes, either.

A matter of necessity—forsooth.

I wonder what in this land I am unlikely enough to happen to know calls a matter of necessity, when it comes to that?

If it isn't necessary for a woman who has worked and sacrificed and suffered and agonized, as every mother of sons and daughters does, no matter what she is, to insist suffer and worry and agonize, be sure her own little grandchild—why, then, in the name of all that's human, what is a matter of necessity?

The rolling up of a few more stings dollars in a miserable, stingy bank account?

I wonder who will think it a matter of necessity to put a headstone at the grave of this man I happen to know when it becomes a matter of necessity for him to say "goodby" to his darn, detestable dollars and
